The goal of Sonnewald Natural Foods, a combination farm and store, is not simply to market the farm's produce.

Educating customers about health and food has been paramount since the business was founded 50 years ago by Grace Lefever and her late husband Tim. The operation has been carried on by their daughter Willa and her husband Bill.

In 1951 Tim and Grace completed an active solar greenhouse, the first in Pennsylvania. Today the farm and greenhouse

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Two days of seminars provided a forum for approximately 230 producers to learn about opportunities for small farms, the theme of the Southeast Pennsylvania Grazing Conference. Lancaster County Graziers, sponsors of the event, conducted the conference at Solanco Fairgrounds.

On Monday topics included small farm economics, on-farm processing and marketing, and understanding soil.

Tuesday Doug Gunnink opened the conference with principles of grass management.

Nutrition is the most important, said Gunnink. "It's important that nutrition not come from a mineral bag or supplements but in the grass." He advised producers to "work on getting sugars high up in the plant" for the cow.

"The ultimate monitoring tool in grass farming is the cow," he said. Soil testing should help make producers make decisions about pasture

High Cost Of Cheap Food Challenged At Conference

DAVE LEFEVER

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — More than 1,000 people turned out for the 11th annual "Farming for the Future" conference of the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) here last week.

Highlights of the two-day event included presentation of a sustainable ag leadership award, a variety of educational sessions, and the words of keynote speaker John Ikerd, ag economist from Missouri.

Ikerd challenged the group to reclaim a sense of community and connection to the land in the face of an industrialized system of agriculture.

Ever fewer farmers have been feeding a growing nation, and Americans spend only a little more than a dime on food out of every dollar they earn. Those facts shows the "impressive efficiency" of our agriculture, Ikerd said.

"But what is the cost of that cheap food?" he asked.

Ikerd grew up on a small dairy farm in Missouri. In the 1960s, he studied at the University of Missouri and become an extension ag economist. His work took him to major universities in Georgia, Oklahoma, and North Carolina.

During the farm financial crisis of the 1980s, his approach to ag economics underwent a profound change.

"I started to question what I saw happening and came to see that the profit-maximization approach being used by ag professionals was at the root of the problem," he said.

He witnessed his brother's struggle to maintain the family dairy farm in Missouri during the 1980s. His brother expanded the milking herd, "was working too hard and going broke," Ikerd said. After downsizing and switching to a grass-based operation, his brother now gets less milk per cow but greater profits and is making a comfortable living from the farm.

Ikerd returned to the University of Missouri in 1989 to provide state and national leadership for research and education programs related to sus-

Drought Emergency Declared For 24 Counties

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — After signing a drought emergency proclamation for 24 counties earlier this week, Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Secretary David Hess discussed the drought and water resource protection at a Lancaster Agricultural Issues Forum at Landis Valley Farm Museum Thursday.

About 60 agribusiness representatives, farmers, lobbyists, and elected officials attended the forum.

"We cannot stress enough the importance of water and the serious issues farmers in Pennsylvania are facing due to the drought emergency," Secretary Hess said. "We need to develop longterm water use strategies as part of a comprehensive approach to better manage our water resources. Lancaster County, one of Pennsylvania's largest farming communities, is a prime example of why we need to protect and preserve our precious water resources for the future."

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

FEBRUARY 18–24, 2002

EMBER DAYS, FEB. 20, 22, 23

FARF WE WELL, GEORGE?

Although born on February 22 1732 George Washington will be honored earlier this year as we observe the official holiday on Monday the 18th We might wonder how the 'father of our country' would view our current national circumstances Washington was considered an outstanding military leader and a wise statesman In his farewell address of September 17, 1796, he cautioned against the United States forming any permanent alliances' with foreign nations believing that to do so would lead us inappropriately into European conflicts He also warned that the party system (Federalists and Democratic Republicans in his day) would lead to geographical discord

Labor to keep alive in your breast that little spark of celestial fire—conscience.

–George Washington first American president (1732–1799)

TIP OF THE WEEK

APPLE PUDDING

2 Cortland or 'McIntosh apples
1/4 cup uncooked rolled oats
1 2 cup apple juice
1/3 cup water
1/2 cup brown rice, cooked
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon pure maple syrup dash of allspice
topping, such as toasted nuts, cream ice cream, or yogurt

Peel core and slice apples Lightly toast oats by stirring in a saucepan over medium heat Mix all ingredients except topping in a saucepan and bring to a boil then cover and simmer for 20 minutes Let cool then blend to desired consistency Add topping

Makes 4 servings

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

In February if thou hearest thunder, / Thou wilt see a summer's wonder

Fogs in February mean frosts in May

Violent north winds in February herald a fertile year

The Building you want.
The Lease you need.

Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: As little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms from five to fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules are specially designed to match your cash flow.

First: Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost.
Then: Call your Telmark representative for your financing.

Living To Serve

Many of our readers are aware that next week is National FFA Week.

More than a decade ago, the organization decided to change its official name from the Future Farmers of America to the National FFA Organization. As far as most were aware, the term "FFA" was not an acronym and was striving to "rename" itself. My suggestion at the time was "Farm Futures Associates," which takes in many agri-industries and related enterprise, not just "cows and plows."

We are impressed with the level of involvement in the community in which this organization is based. Every year we read, in our FFA Keystone Degree autobiographies, of the many ways in which the candidates support the community.

We were even impressed with the involvement of FFA during Farm Show Week this past January in Harrisburg. There, several FFA chapters from around the state served as "tour guides" to visitors inspecting the large equipment in the center of the main exhibit floor.

The Pennsylvania FFA's mission is to make "a positive difference in the lives of young people by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth, and career success" through agricultural education. Not only does FFA develop agricultural leadership, but also it promotes agricultural careers, develops teamwork, builds character, and promotes healthy lifestyles.

The heart of the organization is at the local level. The supervised agricultural experience (SAE) programs are a primary "learning by doing" tool in agricultural education, according to National FFA.

A creed written by E.M. Tiffany, adopted at the third national convention and revised at subsequent conventions, still holds true. That creed points to the "joys and discomforts of agricultural life" yet speaks about holding an "inborn fondness for those associations which, even in hours of discouragement, I cannot deny."

In that creed, Tiffany notes, "I believe that American agriculture can and will hold true to the best traditions of our national life and that I can exert an influence in my home and community which will stand solid for my part in that inspiring task."

Look for upcoming national and statewide events with the FFA, particularly ACES and SLLC, in our farm calendar of events. In the meantime, read this favorite quote held dear by the Pennsylvania FFA:

"Live life to the fullest. Get the most from each hour, each day of your life. Then you can look forward with confidence, and back without regrets."

To Learn About Custom Cattle Feeding

Results of a 2001 Penn State Cooperative Extension survey of southeast Pennsylvania cattle feeders indicated a strong interest in custom feeding cattle, according to Chester Hughes, Lancaster County extension livestock agent.

As more cow/calf producers seek to retain ownership of calves and reap the benefits of carcass information supplied by packers, the opportunities for cattle feeders to remove some of the risk in cattle ownership are more prevalent.

The abundance of genetic information available to cow/calf producers has stimulated their interest in carcass data that can aid in the selection of herd bulls and AI sires leading to higher levels of quality and consistency of fed cattle. Custom feeding provides an additional opportunity for feeders to be competitive in protein-producing agriculture.

The custom feeder utilizes his facilities, labor, management skills, and available feedstuffs to provide a service, while reducing the risks of cattle ownership. Along with management expertise, the custom feeder will need a system to weigh cattle and feed, ideally a TMR, equipment for cattle handling and processing, record keeping experience, and market access.

If you have an interest in learning more about custom feeding beef cattle, plan to attend a series of workshops conducted as part of the "Blueprint for Success" program. Hosted by Penn State Cooperative Extension and the Pennsylvania Beef Council, the workshops will be held on three consecutive Wednesdays at the Acorn Farms Conference Center in Mount Joy, Lancaster County.

Workshop I on February 20 includes topics related to contracts, facilities, and selecting a feedlot.

On February 27, workshop II will address ration formulation, marketing cattle, and making the transition to custom feeding.

The final workshop on March 6 pertains to animal health, liability issues, and marketing your custom feedlot. All sessions begin at 10:00 am, include roundtable discussions and lunch and end at 3:00 pm. For information and to register, contact Chet Hughes at 717-394-6851 by February 18.

To Participate In A Risk Management Survey

The USDA would like to learn more about the risk management needs of specialty crop producers. For this study specialty crops include fruits, vegetables, horticultural crops, maple syrup, Christmas trees, turf, aquaculture, honey, mushrooms and others.

A survey was mailed to about 7,500 growers across Pennsylvania in January. There will be follow-up mailings and phone calls in February through April. A good response to the mailing will reduce the need for calls. Dr. Jayson Harper of the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology will evaluate and summarize the information provided by growers after the names have been removed from the surveys.

He will produce a report for the USDA Risk Management Agency. This evaluation attempts to assess the growers need for risk management tools such as crop insurance. A good level of participation is needed to get an accurate picture of growers needs. A similar survey will be conducted in New York, Florida, and California.

To Care For Your Amaryllis After Flowering

Many people receive an amaryllis bulb during the winter season because of the spectacular flowers it will produce. However, once the flowers fade, what do you do with the bulb? Can it be brought into flower again? Dr. Tim Elkner, Horticulture Extension Agent in Lancaster County tells us the good news is that with a little care, your amaryllis bulb can be enjoyed for several years to come

Elkner suggests you should start by removing the flower stalk after the flowers fade. Make the cut one to two inches above the bulb but be careful not to damage any leaves that have started to grow. In order for the bulb to bloom again next season, the plant must replenish its depleted food reserves. The strap-like leaves manufacture food, which is stored in the bulb. Place the plant in a sunny window and water when the soil surface is nearly dry. Fertilize every two tofour weeks with a houseplant fertilizer.

According to Elkner your amaryllis can be moved outdoors in late May or early June. Acclimate the plant to the outdoors by placing it in a shady, protected area for two to three days then gradually expose it to a few hours of direct sun. After about two weeks of acclimation your plant is ready for a summer outdoors in a partially shaded or sunny flower bed. Continue to water the plant throughout the summer.

Also, continue to fertilize the amaryllis once or twice a month through July. Bring the plant indoors in mid-September. Plants left indoors should be kept in a sunny window.

Amaryllis bulbs need to go dormant or rest for two to three months before blooming. To induce dormancy, place the amaryllis in a cool, semi-dark location in late September and withhold water. Cut off the foliage when the leaves dry and turn brown.

Then place the pot in a cool, dry location for a two to thre month rest period. After several weeks of rest, periodically check the bulb for signs of new growth. When a bud or foliage begins to emerge, place the amaryllis in a warm, bright location and water to start the growth cycle again. If repotting is necessary, do so before watering.

Large, healthy bulbs will produce one or two flower stalks. Small, weak bulbs produce only foliage and if your bulb does not flower the first year, don't be discouraged. After another season of 'recovery' the bulb should flower regularly every winter thereafter.

Quote Of The Week:

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HIDE AND SEEK

Background Scripture:
Jonah 1 through 2; Nahum 3.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 40:1-8.

I trust that none of you have ever been swallowed by a "great fish" — nor even a whale. Therefore, you probably think that Jonah has nothing to do with you. But it does!

Notice, I said it was "the story of Jonah," not "Jonah and the whale." The "great fish" is really a minor walk-on character: ironic because the "whale" seems to get all the attention. For many the acid test is whether or not you believe Jonah was actually swallowed by a "a great fish." (The writer says nothing about a 'whale'). It is not essential to the point of the story, for this is about a man whom God called for a task, but who did his best to run away from both the task and God..

So, this is where I — and maybe you — come in. Like Jonah, there have been times when God has placed on my heart the need to do something specific for him and I have tried to run away. He has shown me a need and I have pretended he was showing me what someone else was supposed to do.

Why do we try to run away from God? For some it is fear of what it will cost us. That might have been some of Jonah's motivation as it has been mine from time to time. But I believe that Jonah's tried to run away from God because, knowing God as he did, he realized that he would want repentance from the people of Nineveh, so that he could forgive them. Instead of a great condemnation, God would probably pull off another great salvation. What Jonah wanted was condemnation.

What Jonah Wanted

Jonah is a most interesting man. He believes in God—-no doubt about that. He even understands God's forgiving nature. Later, when he is on the ship and it is in peril of sinking, Jonah is very honest in confessing: "Take me up and throw me into the sea; then the ship will quiet down for you" (1:12). All things considered, Jonah is an upstanding man,. but, although he believes in God and understands his nature, he simply doesn't like God's plan. Seeing Nineveh forgiven is not what he wants.

We, too, may believe in God, understand his call pretty well, but not approve of what he wants us to do or be. Like Jonah, we want condemnation for others, not forgiveness. What's the point of being "a good guy" if everyone one else can become good guys, too? We very well know God's stand on the poor and powerless, but think our own views are more realistic. We know how he handles adulterers and other blatant sinners, but these are not our ways. We know Jesus said "I was in prison and you did not visit me," but we don't think those people have any claim on us.

The only thing that has really changed since Jonah's day is that we believe we can hide in plain sight. We don't have to run off to sea. We can hide right here in the midst of everyday life. That's what it is for some of us, a daily ritual of hiding from God and his commands. So, don't spend too much time agonizing over the "great fish"; rather think about the ways in which you continue to try to hide from God and what he wants of you.

Where Are You Hiding?

Jonah learned the hard way that we cannot hide from God. He went as far as he could, but God followed him wherever he went. He saw through each of Jonah's evasions — just as he sees through ours. The point here is not what God wanted of Jonah, but of what he wants from you. and me.

So Jonah believed in God, understood his nature and said all the right things, but what he lacked was monumental — he didn't like God's plan. He didn't want to forgive sinners or save cities. He wanted punishment and destruction for the heathen.

Jonah 3 opens with these words: "Then the word of the Lord came to Jonah the second time, saying, 'Arise, go to Nineveh. . .'" (3:1,2). Very often I find that the "second word of the Lord" to me is virtually the same as the first, that what he wants of me is, not something brand new, but that to which he has been calling me in the past. He still waits for me to stop playing 'hide-and-seek.'

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Feb. 11, 2002

Market Continues To Weaken

- Cheese prices drop a penny.
- Butter falls a dime.
- Demand is weak.
- Imports are up.

Not much to look forward to in the dairy markets last week (February 4-8). Market prices are generally weak due to soft demand and increasing milk supplies. It's important to note, however, that this situation can change in the next few weeks. February is typically a poor time of the year for any kind of sales, especially retail.

USDA reported last week that cheese and butter buyers are faced with weak sales prospects coupled with strong production growth. They are putting off buying decisions in anticipation of lower cheese prices in the future. This of course forces prices down at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Blocks last week generally held steady, but barrels fell from $1.20 per pound on Monday, February 4 to $1.1875 by Friday, February 8. Grade AA butter also fell from $1.25 per pound on Monday to $1.20 by Friday.

USDA is reporting that milk supplies are more than adequate across much of the U.S. dairy plants in the East are working on extended schedules to process surplus milk. Cream supplies are also readily available, thus lowering cream prices.

Cow inventory data from USDA shows some interesting numbers. Contrary to conventional wisdom, there are slightly more dairy heifers available today than a year ago. In fact, the number of milk replacement heifers per 100 milk cows on January 1, 2002 was 44.6, up from 44.2 a year ago. How can this be possible? First, these figures don't reflect the quality of heifers available.

There couid be a reduced supply of high quality milking heifers. Second, there are also many aggressive producers that are bidding up the price. That said, I don't expect the perceived "heifer shortage" to realistically affect cow numbers in 2002 (there, I said it!).

Finally, USDA released data for dairy imports for January through October 2001. This was compared to imports for all of 1999 and 2000. The one number that really sticks out was imports of "butter and milkfat." Total imports in 2000 were 13,700 metric tons.

That same figure for January through October 2001 jumped to 32,100 metric tons. These imports, which don't reflect November and December, are high due to the strong butter prices experienced in 2001. Even with high tariffs, it paid processors to import butter rather than use domestic supplies at prices that in some cases exceeded $2 per pound.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Corn, No 2y — 2 32 bu., 4.16 cwt

Hess Farm Supply

This week Ampac Seed Company and Rohrer Seeds recognize Hess Farm Supply of New Holland PA We supply organic and conventional dairy beef and swine farms with a variety of their needs including forage seed feed ingredients homeopathic products and balanced feed programs explains Leon Hess owner of Hess Farm Supply Grass legume mixes such as the Mid-Atlantic Grazer Mix® and his own Blue Ribbon are close to a TMR in the field

Leon Hess
Hess Farm Supply

Forage seed is one of their focuses

Over the years I've tried other company's products and I like the quality of Ampac seeds stated Leon

Of the grasses I like Tekapo® orchardgrass and Duo® festulolium the best The Tekapo® has few stems is very leafy and holds up well during summer The Duo® is a high quality grass similar to ryegrass but tougher against harsh winters and dry hot summers I also like Jumbo® ladino clover It is an excellent tall clover that adds quality and provides nitrogen to the soil Legumes are crucial to making an excellent pasture Starfire® red clover is also an excellent choice noted for its persistence as a red clover

"If a customer is not happy with one of our mixes we will make custom mixes to meet our customers needs

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, January 2002 uniform prices Northeast $13.81, Mideast $12.88, Southeast $14.13, Florida $15.76, and Western New York (a state order) $13.22 at the base cities/counties in the orders (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported )

Milk production is steady to heavier in most of the East Milk output continues to show gains in the Southeast, particularly in the Gulf Coast states Milk output in the Northeast and the Middle Atlantic is showing some increases Most contacts attribute the gains to the mild winter that region has experienced thus far Most contacts comment that the mild weather and good supply of good quality feed is causing a mid-winter flush Reports indicate that fat and protein tests on the incoming milk are increasing Fluid milk supplies are heavy and manufacturing plants are very busy Milk normally earmarked for delivery into the Southeast is, for a while, staying in the region and adding to volumes to be processed Manufacturing plants in the Southeast are operating as needed, mostly on weekends Those few operations that are running daily still have capacity should it be needed Bottled milk sale are a little slower this week as bottling schedules get back to more normal levels There were fewer retail features reported as well as no storm-influenced sales this week

The condensed skim market is unchanged at weak levels. Offerings are heavy and spot demand is slow at best. Prices for wet solids are unchanged

The fluid cream market remains weak Offerings are burdensome and a high percentage of the available loads are clearing to butter plants. Class II demand is mostly contractual Prices are often lower as the CME butter average for last week dropped more than nine cents Some suppliers say they "see the light at the end of the tunnel" in this market, 'but it's so far away it isn't worth thinking about." Ice cream production is seasonally light to moderate, but some operations are starting to put up some inventory for spring needs. Cream cheese output is about steady, but few spot purchases have been reported Churning activity is heavy and most Eastern producers are full The volumes of cream being shipped to Midwest butter makers are significant

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Feb 8 Receipts this week 148,200; last week 185,300; year ago 165,500. This week's reported volume included 49 percent weighing over 600 lbs Compared to last week, feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 2.00 higher across most of the United States, according to the USDA Livestock Market News Service Certain areas such as the Southeast, experienced uneven prices as icy weather impacted the market and curtailed receipts The slick conditions played havoc on livestock marketing from Oklahoma up to northern Missouri and down to Louisiana Heavy ice broke tree limbs and knocked out electricity to thousands Some rural areas of Oklahoma, Kansas, and Missouri may be without power for several more weeks. The winter storms did bring some much-needed precipitation to the Plains and improved spring graze-out wheat prospects This spurred a renewed interest in stocker cattle and caused higher prices. The higher yearling market was inspired by a strong fat cattle market

February CME Live Cattle contracts matured this week which brought an onslaught of delivery tenders, totaling 440 loads by Friday morning. This caused holders of long positions to scurry and gave feedlots the leverage they needed to ask more money for this week's showlists The threat of delivery is what keeps cash and futures markets in line at maturity Occasionally this comes to reality and reminds hedgers and traders that they are dealing with a commodity, and not just rolling dice in Las Vegas. The future continues to get brighter for cattle feeders, but triple digit closeout losses are still fresh on their mind. Buyers remain cautious at the auction markets and direct trading has been slow A large number of wheat yearlings have yet to be contracted, which could leave feedlots short-bought But, if history repeats itself, a few weeks of breakevens or mild profits should give the cattle feeders amnesia

Corn Belt Feedstuff

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

CORN BELT FEEDSTUFF· Wholesale Bids. Truck or Rail dollars per ton. Feedstuff prices finished narrowly mixed for the week as demand remained slow. Some plants slowed runtimes last week making some supplies a little tighter but prices continued close to steady Winter weather eased back again in the Midwest with milder temperatures reported. combine to supply the store with fresh produce even throughout the winter. The farm-and-store combination now supports five households.

The 60-acre farm boasts 30 acres of fruit and biointensive and biodynamic vegetables. Small grains rotated with alfalfa are also part of the farm's production. Local manures and leaves provide fertilizer.

The store, which sells the farm's fruits and vegetables, also sells supplements, educational books, and bulk herbs. Employees also custom grind the grains at the store for customers.

Educating Consumers

Health education is a cornerstone of Sonnewald philosophy.

Approximately 1,500 book titles help to teach customers, besides the three nutrition counselors who give advice on foods to try or books to read for customers with health problems. The counselors give consumers ideas about, for example, a wheat-free diet or cooking with certain foods.

Two years ago Steve Moore, his wife Carol and their three children came to manage the farm and match production with the store's produce needs. In addition to owning his own Adams County farm, Moore was the director of the Center for Sustainable Family Farming at Wilson College.

The operation is unique, said Moore, in that "it is a challenge to grow vegetables year-round in greenhouses using no fossil fuel, just passive solar power," he said.

Business co-founder Grace Lefever continues to live and work on the farm.

A Growing Business

"We can't keep pace with growth," said Moore, who said that prices, service, quality, and a large selection are major reasons for the store's popularity with local- to out-of-state customers. "Since the food is grown here, there are no hidden transport costs," said Carol.

"We pick it fresh every day," said Steve.

Sonnewald Natural Foods customers can count on a year-round supply of varieties of salad greens, onions, kale, chard, parsley, lettuce, and celery.

In the greenhouse, the produce is grown "right in the ground in beds," said Moore.

"Without any fossil fuel we can be 20 degrees warmer than any outside temperature," he said. "We can grow the same things as Georgia."

Carol, a registered nurse, supplies fact sheets and recipes to not only educate the public but also highlight the health benefits of the produce offered.

"We're trying to get people to eat seasonally, to eat right," he said. "Health comes from the farm, not the pharmacy."

The couple works to conduct workshops on growing out-of-season produce without fossil fuels. The seminars are attended by not only local but also international participants. In addition they conduct classes about nutrition, gardening, and orchard production.

Name recognition of the farm's unique cultivars is important to gaining customer loyalty, said Moore. "We want to highlight and educate the consumer on cultivars," he said. "We want people to come in and say, 'When are the neon eggplants coming in?'"

The variety of cultivars that Sonnewald offers, explained Moore, would not be available in a more conventional grocery store.

Although the farm is mostly organic, "organic is not going to get us where we want to be as a society," said Moore.

Why Be Sick, Tired & Overweight When You Could Be Healthy & Energetic With The UNI Wellness Program?

Americans have some of the worst health problems in the world, because most food is grown with chemicals, weed killers, insecticides, and processed with chemicals to increase shelf life. These toxic poisons hinder the immune system from protecting your health and fighting off diseases. Fried and food baked with white flour, sugar and high calories, will produce high cholesterol and plaque in the arteries, and cause over weight and heart attacks. There is a better way.

Why not try the UNI Wellness Program? This includes organically grown Juice Plus fruits and vegetables in concentrated capsule form are guaranteed to be 99.9% pure (no chemicals or toxins). These "all natural" products and live enzymes supply ALL your body's daily nutritional needs. You don't need any other vitamins, minerals or supplements. Costs much less than supplements and the toxic produce you buy at the supermarket. The first 2 items shown below are to help prevent health problems. "An ounce of prevention (good nutritious food) is much better and costs considerably less than an attempted cure (doctor and hospital bills)". The other 2 solution items are to help people who already have a health problem. Select a plan according to your age and health condition.

| Wellness Program Basic Plans 1 month supply | # | Each | Amount |
|---|---|---|---|
| #1 Prevention Plan for people under 30 No problem | | 39.50 | |
| #2 Prevention Plan for people over 30 No problem | | 55.45 | |
| #3 Solution Plan for people under 30 With a problem | | 49.95 | |
| #4 Solution Plan for people over 30 With a problem | | 65.90 | |

fertilizer and supplementary minerals for the cows.

Gunnink displayed a chart with the optimum levels for trace minerals present in the pasture. More than simply for good growth of grass, soil balance has benefits for the livestock consuming the grass, said Gunnink.

One component of healthy soil is the microbes and fungi present. The only way to make compost-like humus is with microbes, according to Gunnink.

"I think it's good at times to go back in the lab and do testing," he said.

Although fungi can be important to soil health, "trying to get rid of root rot creates a problem because fungicides are used and in the process we're killing the good fungi, also."

In contrast, sugar, such as molasses, tends to feed bacteria, along with liquid fish.

Besides biology, management keys will also make or break a soil system.

There is a difference between grazier and a grass farmer, according to Gunnink. A grazier harvests whatever grass grows with livestock, while a grass farmer "is looking to tweak the system to make it better," he said.

For example, "Overgrazing is not how short the grass is, it's how long you leave between the grazing rotation," he said. "I'm not as concerned about how much residue to leave as I am in 'stockpiling,' leaving long rests between rotations."

Art Thicke

Art Thicke, Enchanted Meadows Farm, LaCrescent, Minnesota, manages pasture which includes 500-foot rolling hills well suited for grazing.

Thicke, his wife, and nephew milk 85-90 Ayrshires. The family has used the managed grazing system for 17 years. The farm is comprised of 90 acres.

Extended rest is key in his grazing program. "When I did that, my farm just came alive," he said.

"This system works better on my farm. That's not to say it's going to work on your farm," he said, encouraging producers to decide for themselves which forages and rotation times work best for their own farms. "You have to find what's right for you."

Much of the farm is 15-20 percent slopes, which lends itself to grazing. Thicke has 40 pastures and begins grazing early for Minnesota — April 15-20. At that time he gives each pasture a 20-day rest.

While the springtime means a 20-day rest, by June the rest is extended to 40 days, followed by a 60-day rest in the fall. He usually gets a 220-day grazing season.

"I used to do 8-9 rotations and now I do 4-5 rotations," he said.

Benefits include a diverse offering of forages for the cows, herd comfort in the longer grasses, and less food purchased because of the increased tonnage.

As for pasture health, he clips all pastures once a year. "if you want to have life in your soil you have to feed it," he said. Waiting until the burdock and thistle are just coming into head will help in weed control.

"Don't be afraid of rain," he said. If the animals are only in the area for one day and the area gets enough rest, a mud-riddled area can come back even stronger than before as the plants put down strong root systems.

One example of the animals working up the land to the benefit of the pasture is Thicke's wintering system.

Around the end of November he moves his round bales to a designated pasture, when he removes the net wrap at that time and spaces 145 bales in two rows and places temporary posts between each pair. The fence is manually moved back each day to allow the cows new feed and a clean place to lie. In addition, the cows spread the manure evenly across the pasture.

Since the pasture has had high animal impact all winter, the following growing season the animals are only allowed to graze on it a little and Thicke returns carbon to the ground by clipping the pasture. "The second year it is the best pasture on the farm," he said. "It's a cheap way to renovate your pastures," he said.

Small Farms

David Kline, an Amish bishop from Holmes County, Ohio, highlighted small farms. Kline read a piece written by his son-in-law that investigated the feasibility of starting a farm for young couples.

Grazing may help get more people on farms, said Kline. He advised graziers to perhaps look past purebred Holsteins, which "may not be the best for graziers," he said. "Find a cow that performs well on a grass-based diet."

Although "Home is home, there's nothing stronger than home," Kline said that "if you want to farm you may have to go somewhere and look for land."

In his experience, as Amish communities branch out to other areas, the first few producers get a good deal on the land but once the land is recognized as valuable, the price goes up for farmers who follow.

In conclusion, "Don't get into farming to make wealth but for the joy of livestock operation," he said. By looking at the career as a way to supply the population with quality, healthy food, farming can be considered charity work.

Kline's community does not have a restriction on getting an off-farm job.

Grass Can Work

Jerry Brunetti, owner of Agri-Dynamics, Easton, a holistic resource product and service company, gave the audience a "primer on why grass can work." Brunetti recently attended a conference where "I

"We need to design a sustaining food system that is more holistic than the narrow confines of the current organic and conventional food systems," he said. Moore is looking for a system where food is produced and eaten locally.

"I envision moving toward a sustainable food system where we take nutrition and energy into consideration. Instead of just going organic, let's take a food system and define what we want to have as an outcome and start working to get that. I want to move beyond organic."

PDPP Elects Officers For 2002

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program Board of Directors recently elected its 2002 officers.

Karl Kroeck, Knoxville, Tioga County, was elected chairman. "Farmer-funded promotion programs have worked hard to become more focused in helping to increase dairy demand, and I am pleased to be a part of it," Kroeck said.

Total milk sales have increased by 33 percent and per capita consumption of all dairy products has increased by 12 percent. Per capital cheese consumption has also increased from 11.5 pounds to 30.5 pounds.

"Dairy's future is being built by producers, processors and the rest of the dairy industry focused on common goals," Kroeck said.

Also returning for another term are Harold Shaulis, Somerset County, vice chairman; Raymond Diebold, Blair County, treasurer; and Bertha Ackerson, Indiana County, secretary.

PDPP contracts with the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, which is the local planning and management organization responsible for increasing demand for U.S.-produced dairy products on behalf of America's dairy farmers. ADADC Mid East works closely with Dairy Management, Inc., the national dairy promotion organization, to implement dairy promotion, education and research programs nationwide.

Drought Emergency Declared

and eastern regions of the Commonwealth, Governor Mark Schweiker signed the emergency proclamation for Adams, Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Carbon, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin Delaware, Franklin, Fulton, Huntingdon, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Monroe, Montgomery, Northampton, Perry, Philadelphia, Pike, Schuylkill, Wayne, York counties.

"I urge all Pennsylvanians to do their part to conserve water in every way they can," Schweiker said. "If conditions do not improve, and we do not work together to conserve water, we could face the worst drought in our state's history by spring. That is why I am declaring a drought emergency for 24 Pennsylvania counties this early in the year."

In addition to the 24 counties now in drought-emergency status, seven counties remain in a drought warning, and 31 counties are under a drought watch.

Schweiker said low amounts of rainfall last summer and fall and little snow this winter caused record-low stream and groundwater levels. Water wells are running dry and, prior to this drought-emergency declaration, 71 public water systems across the state are operating under voluntary or mandatory water restrictions.

"Wells have been going dry throughout the emergency area and, for that reason, we've developed a video and fact sheet especially for well owners on how to spot the warning signs that your well is going dry and what you should do," Schweiker said.

"The severity of drought conditions underscores the need to develop an accurate water budget in Pennsylvania," DEP Secretary Hess said. "We need to develop long-term water-use strategies as part of a comprehensive approach to better manage our precious water resources. That is the main reason for Governor Schweiker's initiative that calls for water-resources legislation."

Schweiker noted that drought emergencies have been declared in parts of Pennsylvania in five of the past seven years.

Proposed legislation will provide an opportunity to address the need for more information on water resources in Pennsylvania. The Schweiker administration's water-resources initiative will update the state water plan, identify critical water planning areas, promote voluntary water conservation, improve stormwater management, and establish private water-well standards.

The current drought period began last summer when a drought watch was declared for 23 counties on August 8. On August 24, the drought watch was expanded to include 45 counties. On November 6, nine counties in Southcentral Pennsylvania were revised to a drought warning status, and seven more counties were included in the drought watch. On December 3, an additional 22 counties were revised from drought-watch to drought-warning status.

The proposed legislation will provide an historic opportunity to update the state water plan, identify critical water planning areas, promote voluntary water conservation, improve stormwater management and establish private water-well standards.

Hess emphasized the need to develop a water-conservation "ethic" across Pennsylvania in response to ever-worsening drought conditions. He also discussed Schweiker's water resources legislative initiative.

The Agricultural Issues Forum conducts monthly meetings designed to aid in strengthening agriculture by examining and discussing current and future issues that influence agriculture locally, nationally, and internationally. All production farmers and other agribusiness representatives are invited to the meetings. Open discussion is encouraged.

High Cost Of Cheap Food

"Our never-ending quest for cheap food is the root cause of the transformation of American agriculture from a system of small, diversified, independently owned and operated family farms into a system of large-scale, industrialized, corporately controlled agribusinesses," Ikerd said.

"These farms became part of people's lives. As we industrialized agriculture, we destroyed those communities," he said. "What's the cost of that?

"The cost has largely gone uncounted. I don't think you can put dollar and cent values on it."

The change has also created a fast food culture that offers Americans "diets deficient in practically everything except calories," he said, referring to "Fast Food Nation," a recent book by Eric Schlosser that details the effects of our food system on the health of individuals and American culture.

While the purpose of corporations is to make money, pursuit of the highest possible efficiency tends to ignore human and environmental costs, according to Ikerd.

"(Making money) is simply corporations doing what they were designed to do," he said. "It's not evil people out there, it's just people going about their business."

In following the money, however, corporate leaders become increasingly disconnected from any particular place or community, Ikerd noted.

"Decisions are made by people who have no communities and no citizenship," he said.

Ikerd warned that the globalization of food systems may lead to a case where U.S. agriculture could no longer provide an independent supply of food for its citizens.

"We could easily get into a situation where we're as dependent on the rest of the world for food as we now are for oil," he said.

Change will require that we begin making decisions based on ethical and moral values, not just on profit models, according to Ikerd.

"The stories of impacts on people and impacts on the earth are more important than dollars and cents," he said.

With government policy mainly geared toward large and corporate agriculture, people working for change will "have to challenge it right up front."

Because that kind of change takes time, Ikerd encouraged people to not be too hard on themselves for having a degree of dependence on the current system.

Individuals should realize "I'm not going to change myself overnight. I'm not going to change society overnight," he said.

Ikerd held out hope for the future of agriculture and its role in creating healthy farms and communities, noting the growth and vitality of organizations like PASA across the country as well as the increasing number of "new farmers" reconnecting to the land and their communities.

"Farmers all across America and around the world are already finding ways to restore the health to farming. These farm-found it almost chilling that nutritionists advised that it cannot be done solely on grass," he said.

Farmers can achieve not only good production but also lasting health with a proper forage diet for their cows.

A milk test will reveal the quality of forages the animals are getting.

"We need to build amino acids, not nitrogen, in the grass," he said.

"When you have high nitrogen in the grasses, you don't have a good level of essential amino acids and the cows won't produce butterfat and will have reproductive problems." He recommended calcium, magnesium, potash, and phosphates in the correct ratios.

To summarize his ideas about grain feeding, Brunetti recommended grinding feed and feeding it within a week. Also soaking the grains releases phytic acid and enzyme inhibitors. Sprouting the grain helps much of the starch convert to sugar. "What you are creating with sprouted grain is bypassed protein.

"Diversity defines sustainability," he said, advising the audience to improve species diversity in pastures. "You have to remember that each plant has its strengths and weaknesses."

Besides diversity, "I can't emphasize enough why you should look at wild plants — they can put domestic plants to shame in terms of amino acids," he said. Brushy, woody hedgerows, for example, can be an important source of wild, rich plants. "The more diversity you have, as many sources as you have, that makes a huge difference on the health of a farm," he said.

This year attendance increased by 50 people, according to event organizer and Lancaster County Graziers secretary Roman Stoltzfoos, Kinzer.

ers are creating a new, more healthy and sustainable agriculture," he said.

The key lies in restoring people's relationships to the land, the work of farming, other people, and God — relationships based on love.

"Healthy farms, healthy communities, and healthy people ultimately depend on the same things: faith, hope, and love. And the greatest of these is love," he said.

The two-day conference also offered sessions on a variety of topics including growing and marketing strategies, nutritition, economics, and public policy.

A second annual "Future Issues Forum" continued a discussion of ways for PASA to engage in public policy issues.

Kathy Lawrence of the National Campaign for Sustainable Agriculture spoke on the national Farm Bill and its relationship to sustainable agriculture.

"You have a lot at stake in this Farm Bill," Lawrence said on the massive legislation package scheduled for approval later this year.

Although, the commodity payment part of the Farm Bill "is really pretty disastrous," Lawrence said that the last two months have posted important initiatives for sustainable agriculture in the Senate. These include a proposed limit on farm commodity payments, a beginning farmer initiative, and the conservation security program shifting towards practice-based rather than commodity-based eligibility.

Also under debate is an amendment that would prohibit meat packers from owning livestock operations.

On the state level, a Pennsylvania Sustainable Agriculture Act is "on the books" but currently has no funding, according to PASA board members.

Pennsylvania ag leaders attending the conference included Christian Herr, deputy secretary of agriculture, numerous Penn State extension personnel, and Marilyn Corbin, Pennsylvania 4-H program leader.

Speaking at the annual awards banquet, Corbin urged PASA members to take advantage of 4-H programs to develop youth leadership on the farm and in the community.

PASA Director Brian Snyder said he was a 4-H member for 10 years as a youth. "The four H's (heart, home, hands, and health) always meant sustainability to me," he said.

Innovative, Persistent Leaders

Jim and Moie Crawford, Hustontown, received the PASA sustainable ag leadership award.

Pennsylvania 4-H Director Marilyn Corbin encourages PASA members and youth to participate in 4-H programs to help promote sustainable lifestyles. PASA Director Brian Snyder looks on.

Since 1976, the Crawfords have owned and operated New Morning Farm, a 95-acre certified organic vegetable operation near the border of Huntingdon and Fulton counties. The farm produces 40 different fruit, vegetable, and herb crops with annual sales of more than $220,000.

Over the years, the Crawfords have built a a many-faceted direct marketing system. They have organized two well-established farmers' markets and helped found a wholesale marketing cooperative called Tuscarora Organic Growers with a group of central Pennsylvania growers. Much of the produce is marketed, both retail and wholesale, in the Washington D.C. area.

The farm employs one or two year-long helpers in addition to about 15 seasonal workers and apprentices. Many of the apprentices that have worked on New Morning Farm have gone on to manage their own successful farming operations and/or become leaders in sustainable agriculture.

The farm is equipped with a heated greenhouse and two high-tunnel cold frames for extended-season growing. Other utilities on the farm includes an irrigation system, refrigerated packing shed, and layer house for 200 hens.

New Morning Farm Manager Chris Fullerton nominated the Crawfords not only "for their sheer persistence and individual excellence" but for leadership beyond their own operation.

"They've consistently reached out to their fellow farmers — to nurture, nourish, encourage, and advance other growers," he said.

After 30 years of farming and marketing, the Crawfords are still trying new crops, new production techniques, and new management strategies. Their diverse marketing program serves as example and inspiration for many.

"They've pushed the envelope on direct marketing to show how much is really possible, cramming their trucks full of their own and their neighbors' fresh foods every weekend and coming home, after a few short hours of sales, with mostly empty boxes — and a lot of cash," Fullerton said.

In his tribute to the Crawfords, Fullerton echoed keynote speaker John Ikerd's words on the link between healthy farms, healthy communities, and love.

"The most important lesson that apprentices can learn at New Morning Farm is that love can sustain difficult and challenging work over a long time.

"There's an awful lot of work going on at New Morning Farm. It happens because Jim and Moie love it so much," he said.

Penn State Cooperative Extension Capitol Region Dairy Team

PNEUMONIA IS A CALF KILLER

Dr. Arlen Mills
Extension Veterinarian
Capital Region

Successful calf raising requires that you prevent the two big calf killers: scours and pneumonia. These two diseases alone kill as many as twenty-five percent of all dairy calves and cost producers millions of dollars annually. Many cases of scours and pneumonia are treatable, but treatment should never replace disease prevention.

I will deal with the area of calf respiratory diseases in this article. Scours and related diseases will be covered in a later article.

Pneumonia is probably most common when calves are grouped together after weaning. Predisposing factors for pneumonia are stress, moisture and temperature fluctuations, drafts, noxious gases such as ammonia, and an environment high in viruses and bacteria. The young calf also is predisposed to pneumonia due to an immature immune system and less lung resistance as compared to an older animal.

One of the most important things you can do in pneumonia prevention is to decrease the number of irritants and disease-causing organisms in the air. Providing good ventilation, isolating calves from exposure to older stock, and proper sanitation, can accomplish this.

Maintaining proper ventilation is a constant juggling act in many calf facilities. Ammonia smell in a structure or high humidity in cold weather can be a signal of a brewing pneumonia outbreak. Cold temperatures are less important in preventing pneumonia as long as calves are protected from drafts, have dry and adequate bedding, and nutrition needs are met.

One of the reasons that calf hutches are successful for many producers is that the calves are isolated from older animals which may be harboring viruses or bacteria that can cause serious respiratory infections in the young, susceptible calf. Putting the calf in a place where there is no air exchange with areas housing the older stock is vital to prevent this exposure. I have seen situations where the exhaust fans from a barn containing cows pulled air directly into the calf area. Either move the fan or the calves.

Up to this point I have not mentioned vaccination. It is my opinion that viral agents trigger most of the pneumonia outbreaks with the bacteria component joining in later. Since the calf gets it's early immunity from the colostrum, it means that when the cow is vaccinated, you are protecting not only the cow, but also her calf. Therefore, review your cow vaccination program to be sure you are vaccinating for the agents most often responsible for viral calf pneumonia. These should include BVD, IBR, PI3, and BRSV.

The bacterial agents most often isolated from calves with pneumonia are Pasteurella multocida and Manhemia (Pasteurella) hemolytica. Calves that are vigorous when born, are provided with adequate levels of colostrum, and are kept in a healthy environment with clean air and dry bedding can usually resist invasion of the lung by bacterial organisms. There are Pasteurella vaccines available but I suggest looking hard at these other factors before starting a Pasteurella vaccination program.

In recent months I have been hearing more about Mycoplasma problems in dairy calves. When I see calves with respiratory problems and ear infections, usually there are cow problems as well. Isolating Mycoplasma infected cows to prevent spread through the herd is crucial. Treatment efforts on cows and calves are very unrewarding. Biosecurity steps to prevent the introduction of Mycoplasma onto the farm is the place to stop this disease.

Antibiotics and vaccination have a place in pneumonia control but the goal should be prevention and not treatment. Identification and correction of management practices that predispose calves to pneumonia will contribute greatly to overall calf health and profit on our dairy farms.

Scrapie Information Meeting Planned

YORK (York Co.) — An informational meeting on Scrapie is planned for Saturday, March 9 at the York County 4-H Center.

The York County 4-H Lamb and Wool club will host an open session to educate sheep and goat producers about Scrapie. Dr. Lauren Weiss-Landon DVM, a veterinary mfhar edical officer with USDA will be at the session to speak and answer questions about the program.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and will conclude by noon.

The York County 4-H center is located off route 30 near Spring Grove. Please call the Penn State Cooperative Extension- York County for more information or directions at (717) 840-7408.

Junior Holstein Association Honors Outstanding Youth

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — The 2001 Junior All-Pennsylvania Show awards were presented to the winning junior members at the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention February 10.

Sixteen classes were recognized in the Junior All-Pennsylvania Contest, a picture and placing contest with three judges evaluating and placing each class.

The contest saw 33 different juniors receive recognition for their participation in the 2001 contest. Clayton Wood led all juniors with four awards. Holly Miller and Andrew Stoner each received three awards while Dustin Horning, Christy Hindman, Amanda Cessna and Scott Walton received two awards respectively. Congratulations to these juniors for breeding and/or owning such fine individuals.

Junior progressive breeder winners were Amy Hartle, Troy Hartle, Scott Walton, and Shelly Woodmansee.

David Sattazahn, Shelly Woodmansee, and Amanda Myers were recognized as breeders of cows that have been classified Excellent.

Junior breeders with cows producing more than 30,000 pounds in a 305-day lactation were Amy Hartle, Scott Walton, Shelly Woodmansee, Crystal Miller, Kendel Reist, and Dustin Smith.

Shelly Woodmansee, Holly Manross, Katie McWilliams, Crystal Miller, and Clayton Wood were recognized for cows with a lifetime production of more than 150,000 pounds of milk.

This year's PAL award went to Duane Nolt, Richland, Lebanon County.

The PAL award is presented to an exceptionally active and influential adult in the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association.

Nolt has been extremely active in Pennsylvania Junior Holstein activities. He has served on the Pennsylvania Holstein Youth Committee and has served as advisor to the Junior Holstein Executive Committee. He has also been an active coach with his county's Dairy Bowl teams since 1991.

Following are the 2001 All-Pennsylvania winners:

Junior Holstein Enthusiasts Gather

LINDA WILLIAMS
Blair Co. Correspondent

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) —"Challenging You In 2002" was the theme for the nonstop activity filling the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention conducted here last weekend.

Arriving on Friday evening, more then 300 students, ages 7 to 21, were greeted by co-chairmen Karyn Shaw of Williamsburg and Jennifer Metzler of Martinsburg. Metzler is a former Blair County dairy princess. Students came from every rural area of the state.

Activities for the weekend included a survivor fun night, dances, snow tubing and skiing at Blue Knob, ice skating, and tours of the two the Metzler farm in Martinsburg and the Penn England farm in Williamsburg.

Awards were given in various competitions including a dairy bowl contest, photography, banners, speechmaking, and scrapbooking.

Junior All-Pennsylvania Show award winners were also named.

Ken Raney acted as chairman of the event.

Lancaster Farming's quarterly exclusive booklet, Dairy Plus, begins its 2002 season with the Feb. 23 issue, devoted to manure management issues and techniques.

Special features include managing odors, manure handling guides, and other issues important to the dairy producer. Also scheduled: cooperative news and an update on a calf cloning project, in addition to farm calendar and university columns.

Drought Is Main Topic At Valley/Blue-Ridge Forage Conference

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

RAPHINE (Rockbridge Co. Va.) — At the Valley/Blue-Ridge Forage Conference on Feb. 5, some 60 participants like David and Carolyn Yawars from Lexington, who attended "to find out about the impact of the drought," in relation to their cow/calf operation — went back home with some good information for dealing with extended dry spells.

Moderator Rick Heidel said at the outset, "Stop reacting to droughts and start planning for droughts." Heidel is the extension agent for Animal Science in the Virginia Cooperative Extension.

There are a number of ways to plan, including managing birthing cycles of livestock to coincide with the season when grazing forages can supply the majority of nutritional requirements. Additionally, have a contingency plan prepared after analyzing water supplies. Planning for drought also includes knowing everything possible about the various forages and the management of them, besides knowing how high quality production during drought periods can be maintained.

Simple things matter, like paying heed that the grasses not be grazed off too short to prevent the regeneration of new growth later from nutrients still in the stem base.

State climatologist Dr. Patrick J. Michaels, from the University of Virginia, used charts to illustrate weather data in the state.

"Virginia statewide weather data shows no trend," he stated. "As the climate fluctuates farmers do what they have always done. Adapt."

He said rainfall in the mid-Atlantic region is at times either feast or famine, but extremes are not getting worse.

Jonathan P. Repair, extension agent covering forages for five counties, urged the farmers to pay attention to soil fertility by maintaining tests, keeping a high soil pH and doing proper fertilization for realistic goals.

"Lime is the cheapest nutrient to put on fields," he said. When discussing forage species that grow well in the Valley he said of all the grasses, rye is the most dependable.

"Know your forages," he said, using fescue for an example. "Fescue can be abused but it will always come back. Alfalfa is the queen of forages, but you got to take care of it."

Of hay he said that the easiest way to increase yield is by cutting early because it enhances utilization of available moisture and cooler temperatures. He pointed out that quality goes down as tonnage increases.

"When the quality is higher you don't have to feed as much," he said. "Hay is hay. Quality is what you need to look at."

Repair touched on methods of storing feed and other considerations about grazing systems such as drilling wells since the water table has dropped. He said these days wells have to be much deeper than before and drilling is a tricky thing because the underground in the Valley is unique and has no aquifers as other places do.

Dr. Ray Smith, extension forage specialist with Virginia Tech, talked about variety selection and reported the boggling statistics. For example 800 varieties of alfalfa are registered for sale in the United States, although only 300 are currently being marketed.

He said the roots of alfalfa go dormant to survive droughts and are known to root deeper and deeper into the ground to draw water out of the water table.

He cited cases where, in peculiar places like old mine shafts and so forth, alfalfa roots were discovered to measure 35-100 feet long.

Dr. Smith covered its fall dormancy and winter survival stages, saying that the best planting time for alfalfa is late summer.

Insect resistance and disease resistance were discussed, as well as how other experimental grass types are surviving in the Valley.

He warned "Buyer beware," about advertisers who tout the yields of alfalfa from seed.

These claims can be deceptive. He instead recommended a trip to the internet where official results can be found. Doing so may well prevent later regrets for the farmer who doesn't want to be taken in.

Bennie Cubbage and Barbara Kibler from Luray were named the Area Outstanding Forage Producer Award Winner by the Virginia Forage and Grassland Council (VFGC). Cubbage accepted the plaque from Shawna Bratta, VFGC member.

In her remarks Brattan commented that while the operation isn't fancy Cubbage does a lot of practical things on the Page County farm.

He began farming as a 17-year old just out of high school and 12 years later also took a position with the USDA Soil Conservation Service. Today, however, there are 116 brood cows and heifers going through the rotational grazing system Cubbage has designed on the 275 acres they owns and the 75 they rent.

The younger stock are fed the better quality hay and the older cattle, the lower quality hay until the calving season. It starts in February and lasts about 90 days, he said. With this schedule the nutritional peak of the forage hits when most of the calves are 60 days old and the cows milk is at peak production.

The older cattle are wintered separately in two locations divided by a state road and the hay is unrolled to distribute nutrients back on the fields.

Winter cow piles are spread with a chain drag in conjunction with over seeding.

Some 140 acres are used exclusively for pasture; 14 exclusively for hay; 86 acres that are pasture and woodland. The woods are managed for lumber, firewood and wildlife he said.

Cubbage said that while the five tracts that comprise the farm are separate from one another, they are operated as a unit. Each tract has three paddocks, water access and shade.

Four major streams on the place used to fluctuate between blessing and cursing — depending on the rains — until Cubbage got into the cost-share program with the USDA and the state in order to drill two wells and install ten freeze-proof waterers.

Now on his tractor, when he drives out to check the cattle the woods are excluded.

Confining cows to the paddock he wants to fertilize, Cubbage said, helps control where the manure goes and he added that the paddocks also enable them to control what the cows eat during the grass tetney season and helps to prevent the problem.

Doing fecal samples, he said, reflects exactly what the animals are getting in their diet.

As much hay as possible is made during the season and the animals are grazed on as little pasture as they can get by with. The first two cuttings are hay.

Third and fourth cuttings are only alfalfa, he said.

"To us the best drought insurance is a barn full of hay," Cubbage said.

The herd itself is comprised of different breeds, except for the Angus bulls. "I've never been concerned about color," Cubbage said.

He said that a cow of about 1,100 pounds with a body condition of 5.5 is their goal since larger cows are less efficient on forage and smaller cows have more calving problems, but fewer grading problems at sale time.

They maintain a health program and follow a specific nutritional management plan.

"We use a 'system' approach to forage production, matching the forage to the soil and the cattle to the forage," Cubbage said.

"Our goal," Cubbage said, "is to profitably produce feeder calves while the environment and preserving the aesthetics of the farm."

Seedbed Preparation and Seeder Adjustment was addressed by Dr. Christopher Teutsch, extension Forages and Livestock Specialist, Virginia Tech Southern Piedmont AREC.

Fertilizer Strategies for Dry Weather was discussed by Dr. Greg Mullins, extension Nutrient Management Specialist, Virginia Tech.

The conference was held less than a mile from the early 1800s home of Cyrus Hall McCormick, inventor of the reaper. The farm is situated in both Rockbridge and Augusta Counties and considered to be the "Birthplace of the American Agricultural Revolution."

Born Feb. 15, 1809, McCormick first demonstrated the reaper in 1831, eventually moved to Chicago from the Shenandoah Valley farm near Raphine and Steeles Tavern, Va. The company he founded there grew to be the International Harvester Company.

The 634-acre Walnut Grove farm and birthplace and early home of Cyrus Hall McCormick, inventor of the reaper, is now used for research and is open to visitors. In 1954 the farm was acquired by the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University as a gift from the McCormick heirs.

Dairy Managers Complete Human Resource Training

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Another group of dairy managers completed Dairy Alliance's Management Essentials for Dairy Success (MEDS) course and received their certificates. They are now ready to organize their dairy operations for improved employee performance and satisfaction.

MEDS training equipped the new class with proven techniques that they can use to make their dairy businesses more profitable and more desirable as a place of work. MEDS develops the supervisory leadership skills of middle and senior dairy managers.

The most recent MEDS class took place in Altoona during October and November of 2001. Graduates included Duane Hershey from Ar-Joy Farm in Cochranville; Robin Stone, Bethany Nelson, and Pamela Craig from Murmac Farms in Bellefonte; Doug Smith from Frosty Hollow Farms in Roaring Spring; Chad Ripka from Fair Valley Farms in Martinsburg; Dan and Penny Ulmer from Guided-Path Farm in Bellefonte; Logan Bower from Pleasant View Farms in Blain; Dave Hileman and Terry Foster from Hilecrest Farm in Tyrone; Mike Trout from Trout Brothers in Loysville; Jodi McClintock from McClintock Dairy in Accident, Md.; and Clay Reese from the Reese Farm in Port Matilda.

Instructors for the course were John Park from Penn State Management Development, Lisa Holden from Dairy and Animal Science, and Richard Stup from Dairy Alliance.

MEDS is a comprehensive, six-part, supervisory leadership program. A new class is forming that will meet at the Clarion Hotel and Convention Center in Carlisle. All dairy managers who wish to improve their employee management skills are invited to attend. The first three sessions of MEDS will be in Carlisle on April 3, 24, and May 1. Titles of the first three modules are Module 1: communication skills and techniques, Module 2: supervisory roles, responsibilities, and leadership, and Module 3: performance management and motivation.

The last three sessions will take place in fall 2002. MEDS is an intensive course and registration will be limited. For more information, or to reserve your place in MEDS, contact Tammy Perkins at the Dairy Alliance office, (888) 373-PADA or tap10@psu.edu.

18 Pennsylvania Farms With 2,191 Acres Preserved In January

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) - Eighteen Pennsylvania farms totaling 2,191 acres were preserved at the January meeting of the State Agricultural Farmland Preservation Board, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced last week.

"Pennsylvania continues to lead the way in preserving farmland," Secretary Hayes said. 'In 2001, Pennsylvania had a record breaking year with 309 farms preserved, and we are hoping to build on that momentum in 2002."

"With the ongoing support of Gov. Schweiker and state lawmakers, Pennsylvania remains strongly committed to saving its farmland and open space through initiatives like 'Growing Greener,'" Secretary Hayes said.

Currently, 53 counties participate in the Farmland Preservation program, working with farmers to purchase development rights, referred to as easements, which guarantees that the land will remain as farmland for future generations.

To assist farmers in the planning of easement purchases, the Department of Agriculture sponsors the Installment Purchase Agreement Program allowing landowners to defer capital gains taxes, which in turn allows county preservation programs to use funding toward the preservation of other farms. In addition, the department created the Land Trust Reimbursement Program to assist the private land trusts in preserving prime agricultural land.

To learn more about Pennsylvania's nationally recognized farmland preservation program, contact the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Farmland Preservation at (717) 783-3167 or visit the department's Website through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

Farms listed for preservation in January follow:

Adams County:

- Melville and Patricia Brandstetter, Franklin Township, 103 acres, $170,300.
- Nancy and Michael Bross, Hamilton Township, 98 acres, $194,000.

Berks County:

- Gary and Denise Baer, Jefferson Township, 116 acres, $232,000.
- Clarence and Edna Bashore, Bethel and Tulpehocken townships, 253 acres, $468,790.
- Oscar and Sandra Manbeck, Bethel Township, 333 acres, $666,400.

Bucks County:

- David and Sharon Bishop, Plumstead Township, 36 acres, $344,375.
- Howard and Dorothy Roth, Nockamixon Township, 148 acres, $919,080.

Dauphin County:

- Crissinger Family Farm Ltd. Partnership, Lykens Township, 202 acres, $302,550.

Erie County:

- Wajeeh and Malake Rahal, North East Township, 110 acres, $209,189.

Lancaster County:

- William and Judith Bergdoll, Fulton Township, 61 acres, $103,602.
- J. Nelson and Lois Harnish, West Lampeter Township, 115 acres, $357,399.
- Ruth Weaver, West Cocalico Township, 78 acres, $241,630.

York County:

- Leroy and Joyce Bupp, Shrewsbury Township, 125 acres, $208,125.

Regional Christmas Tree Meeting Set

HAZLETON (Luzerne Co.) — The sixteenth annual Northeast Regional Christmas Tree Growers Meeting and Trade Show will be held Saturday, March 2 at Genetti Lodge and Conference Center in Hazleton, Pa from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Topics to be discussed include the following: Mites and Miticides; New and Standard Fungicides for Christmas Trees; Soils and Soil Fertility; Using Fertilizers on the Plantation; Retail marketing; Lyme Disease - It's Impact and Prevention; Deer Fencing Update.

The purpose of this meeting is to educate new and established growers on the most up-to-date cultural and marketing practices available.

Attendance at this meeting qualifies licensed pesticide applicators to receive credits towards recertification. Update training credits will be assigned by the PA Department of Agriculture. Changes in the meeting agenda may result in adjustments in the assigned credits.

Meeting enrollment will be limited to the first 200 people who pre-register. All registrations must be postmarked by February 22, 2002. For additional information and registration form please contact the Carbon County Cooperative Extension office at 570-325-2788.

Poultry Industry Looks To Tomorrow's Leaders With Today's Youth

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Recruiting and training today's youth is key to the poultry industry's future, said Phillip Clauer, senior extension associate at the department of poultry science, Penn State.

Clauer spoke to approximately 30 poultry and allied industry professionals and university and government representatives who gathered for a poultry seminar, a monthly meeting, at Kreider's Restaurant.

A graduate of the University of Wisconsin and a former poultry specialist at Virginia Tech, Clauer is now working to increase the number of students in the poultry science department at Penn State. Besides recruitment, Clauer heads up 4-H and youth programs dealing with poultry and coordinates internships for the animal science major.

4-H is a major emphasis for the youth programs underway, said Clauer. Embryology programs, raising chickens, and competitive events are three majors facets of the youth program.

More than 54,000 students, kindergarten through 12th grade, participate in the embryology program. One challenge is to find a reliable source of quality fertile eggs for each area.

Raising/rearing projects are community-based clubs for youth that enjoy birds, according to Clauer. Broilers, capons, turkeys, and pullets are the market poultry projects available. They provide an "excellent learning experience," said Clauer.

Student participation in raising/rearing projects is now approximately 500, but with new materials and support those numbers should grow quickly to more than 2,500, according to Clauer.

Exhibiting their projects is the "capstone of the year" for students and is necessary to finalize projects. When shows are canceled to stop disease spread, as evidenced this past year at the Farm Show, leaders should have contingency plans, said Clauer.

"What can we do without live birds?" he asked.

One of the competitive events coming up this summer at 4-H Achievement Days will be an avian bowl. In quiz bowl style, students will participate on 3-4 person teams. They will receive a packet of materials that will cover the topics such as food safety, management, and embryology.

Also at achievement days will be poultry presentations such as egg, chicken and turkey contests will allow students to have their prepared poultry judged on taste and presentation. They must also be able to speak competently about the industry in the competitions.

Poultry judging/grading contests will also be part of Clauer's youth programs at Achievement Days.

An industry youth convention such as the conferences Clauer has spearheaded in Virginia would not only allow an educational opportunity for students but also let them compete in judging contests and receive scholarship money.

Also during the Virginia conventions, said Clauer, students were able to take part in job shadowing for the afternoon. Clauer plans to begin a similar program for Pennsylvania.

"What the industry got out of this, more than recruiting, is P.R. (public relations)," he said. "Kids realized what the industry was all about... it's invaluable in that aspect."

Clauer also plans to have a poultry youth weekend on campus for high-school students and their leaders to introduce people to the department and industry.

After making contact with students through these events, follow-up with potential students is essential, as "That's the only way they're going to know we're interested in them at all," he said. Interested students receive periodic mailings to stay in touch with the poultry department.

Clauer asked that the industry support youth programs with their time and product for embryology studies or cooking programs. He also encouraged industry representatives to be guest speakers for poultry clubs or provide internship opportunities.

At right is speaker Phillip Clauer, senior extension associate for the Penn State poultry science department. He is joined by Gregory Martin, capitol region poultry specialist based in Lancaster.

Dierks Named CEO Of National Pork Producers Council

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Board of Directors of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) announces the appointment of Neil Dierks, 44, as Chief Executive Officer of the organization effective Feb. 12. Dierks will succeed Al Tank who resigned on Oct. 15.

Dierks brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to his new position. Beginning in 1990, Dierks served NPPC in a series of senior executive positions, including Executive Director of Operations, Vice-President for Research and Education and Senior Vice-President for Programs.

Prior to his service with NPPC, Dierks was the Special Activities Director for the Iowa Pork Producers Association and Marketing Director for the Iowa Corn Promotion Board. As CEO, Dierks will now be spending time in both Des Moines and Washington, D.C.

Neil Dierks grew up on a livestock farm in eastern Iowa and remains involved in a family farming operation. He is a graduate of Iowa State University. He and his wife Kristie, have three children.

"The NPPC Board wanted a candidate who understood pork production and was equipped with the vision, knowledge and expertise to lead our industry into a confident and prosperous future," NPPC President Barb Determan said.

The selection of Dierks followed an extensive executive search that lasted more than three months. More than 40 candidates were identified and evaluated by the NPPC search committee with the assistance of a professional executive search firm. The NPPC search committee included current and former board members, past NPPC presidents and the executive director of a state pork association.

Junior National Hereford Expo Will Be In Sioux Falls, S.D.

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. — National Junior Hereford Association (NJHA) members and their families will share the "Pride of the Prairie," July 15-20, at the Junior National Hereford Expo in Sioux Falls, S.D.

The W.H. Lyon Fairgrounds will serve as headquarters for most of the activities. One of the largest junior breed shows in the U.S., the Junior National Expo is a highlight of the NJHA's activities.

Known to many as a family vacation, this summer show provides an opportunity for competition of both animals and owners. A hands-on type of program for youth provides educational, leadership and motivational information. Scholarships will be awarded to junior members, based upon their scholastic, leadership and agri-industry involvement. Social events such as dinners, dances, a 3-on-3-basketball tournament, and barnyard olympics are also highlights for juniors and adults.

The show ring will garner much attention where junior exhibitors will compete for national recognition in the heifer, bull, bred-and-owned heifer, steer and cow/calf shows. A show of 900-head of cattle from 35 states is expected, attracting over 500 junior exhibitors plus their families, along with spectators.

It is conducted each July and is co-sponsored by the American Hereford Association (AHA) and affiliated junior and state Hereford associations. As veteran national junior show hosts, the South Dakota Junior Hereford Association, along with many South Dakota Hereford supporters, will host this event.

For a list of accommodations and other updates, refer to the AHA website, at www.hereford.org .

Pa. Grazing, Forage Conference March 6-7

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — If you have not registered for the Pennsylvania Grazing and Forage Conference, you need to do that quickly as time is running out.

The deadline is Feb. 18 to register and still receive the reduced cost.

The conference will be March 6-7 at the Holiday Inn in Grantville.

Charlie Opitz will be a featured speaker at the conference and will talk about how he grazes 1,200 lactating dairy cows. His system involves 3,000 acres of forages that are devoted to pasture and other forage production. He will also discuss what he has done to advance his grazing management level.

Ray Smith, extension forage specialist at Virginia Polytechnic Institute (VPI) in Blacksburg, Va. will also be at the conference to discuss his research with forage genetics and what is new in that arena of research. He will also discuss tall fescue and the endophyte problems associated with its use as a forage crop.

Smith will be a featured part of two breakout sessions to discuss the topic of tall fescue, and he will be able to answer your questions and concerns about it as a forage crop and its health effects on livestock.

Along with Smith in the breakouts will be Glenn Moyer, a grazier and dairy producer of Cover Mountain Farm. Moyer will discuss the problems he has had with tall fescue and what he is doing about it.

There are many other topics that will be discussed as part of the conference on forages and grazing. If you have an interest in learning more about grazing in the summer heat, how to make award-winning hay, producing horse hay, and that all-important issue of biosecurity on your farm, then you should plan to attend the conference.

In addition to these topics, many more will be presented by a wide array of speakers. Several Pennsylvania farmers as well as New York large herd grazier Gary Burley will be part of the program to bring to you their story and how they work with grazing and forage programs on their farms.

On Wednesday evening there will be informal discussions with many of the days presenters. Three different discussions groups will be conducted. The topics will be dairy grazing, livestock grazing, and harvesting and preserving quality forages. This is your opportunity to get your specific questions answered and to discuss with fellow graziers your current concerns for your farm or the grazing industry.

Just prior to the evening program, the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council will conduct its annual meeting and will present several awards to outstanding individuals from all areas within the forage industry.

In addition to the discussions at the conference, there will also be a trade show where company representatives will be on hand to showcase what is new with forages and grazing technologies. You will be able to learn about the newest varieties or fence energizer and even purchase it there at the trade show with perhaps a discount. Many of the companies provide products which will be given away as door prizes.

This conference is being cosponsored by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council and the Pennsylvania Grazing Research and Education Center. For more information, contact Lisa Crytser at (814) 865-2543 or your local cooperative extension or NRCS office.

Bank Seminar To Focus On Economic Impact Of Agriculture

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The educational spotlight will shine on "The Significance of Agriculture" at the 21st annual First Union Agri-Education Seminar Thursday, Feb. 28, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

According to Darvin E. Boyd, senior vice president and director of First Union's Agri-Finance Department, "Agriculture is the number one industry in Pennsylvania, and the life blood of 59,000 farm families in the commonwealth. With $4.1 billion in cash receipts from crops and livestock, Pennsylvania farmers and agribusinesses are the leading agricultural producers in the northeastern U.S. excelling in the development of new technologies and producers of an unparalleled supply of top quality food and fiber products."

Sponsored annually by First Union, the day-long seminar for the agricultural and agribusiness communities is presented to keep them informed of the changes and opportunities in the industry. Robert L. Reid, state CEO of First Union-Pennsylvania/Delaware, will open the event. Joseph M. Del Tito, market president of First Union-Lancaster Region, will also take part in the events of the day, which will run from 8:15 a.m. until 2:50 p.m.

The Pennsylvania State Secretary of Agriculture, the Honorable Samuel E. Hayes Jr. will be the keynote speaker at the Feb. 28 event.

A producers panel with representatives from the broad spectrum of businesses within the agricultural community will look at the industry from its many facets.

Panel participants will include F. Barry Shaw, president and CEO of Wenger's Feed Mill, Inc. and chairman of First Union's Agri-Finance Board of Directors; Allen R. Rider, Ph.D., vice president of North America New Holland Agricultural Business; Ann Risser, managing partner of Risser Grain in Lancaster County; Philip A. Clemens, chairman and CEO of Clemens Family Corporation in Montgomery County; Keith and Helen Masser, owner-operators of Sterman Masser potato producers in Schuylkill County; Jack Reitnauer, chairman of the American Mushroom Institute in Chester County; Phoebe R. Bitler, co-owner and operator of Vista Grande Dairy Farm in Berks County and Philip L. Kulp, co-owner and manager of Kulp Family Dairy Farm in Blair County. A question and answer session, moderated by Shaw, will follow the panel's presentations.

The agri-education seminar will also feature several other knowledgeable industry professionals. Jay H. Bryson, Ph.D., vice president and global economist of Wachovia Securities in Charlotte, N.C., will discuss "The US Economic Outlook." H. Louis Moore, professor of agricultural economics at Penn State University, will address "Agricultural Markets in 2002."

John M. Blanchfield, manager of agricultural banking and rural development for the American Bankers Association in Washington, D.C., will discuss "The Significance of the Farm Bill." Bernard L. Erven, Ph.D., professor and extension specialist at Ohio State University in Columbus, Ohio will focus on "Succeeding in Agriculture Through Your Family."

Also taking part in the day will be Paul W. Hostetter, Pennsylvania Future Farmers of America state president who will look at "FFA — Training Tomorrow's Leaders Today."

Lancaster Farming's quarterly exclusive booklet, Dairy Plus, begins its 2002 season with the Feb. 23 issue, devoted to manure management issues and techniques.

Special features include managing odors, manure handling guides, and other issues important to the dairy producer. Also scheduled: cooperative news and an update on a calf cloning project, in addition to farm calendar and university columns.

Lancaster 4-H Livestock Clubs Gather For Banquet

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Not only 4-Hers but also leaders and livestock buyers or sponsors were recognized during the recent Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Banquet at the Farm and Home Center.

After the meal, club presidents introduced each club's officers and recognized graduating members. The club vice presidents introduced 4-H livestock leaders.

"I don't know of any other organization that gives kids responsibility like this," said county dairy beef club leader Gary Zurin. Although participants may win or lose, each 4-Her builds character and learns valuable life lessons, according to Zurin.

Lancaster County livestock extension agent Chet Hughes focused on the 4-H Centennial celebration going on during 2002. Hughes read a historical account of one of the claims to the beginnings of 4-H in Clark County, Ohio.

Leaders with the longest years of service in each club include William Dean, Red Rose Beef Club, 34 years; Bill Fisher, county swine club, 26 years; Gary Dean, Woolies Club, 21 years; Roxanne Grube, county goat club, 8 years; and Gary and Judy Zurin, also Melissa Sauder, county dairy beef club, 3 years.

In addition each club recognized winning members of the County Roundup and Farm Show competitions.

In the Woolies Club, for example, Jaymi McMichael was recognized as the owner of the champion Corriedale ewe at the Farm Show. Joelynn Donough had the champion carcass lamb and Adam Zurin had the reserve champion carcass lamb in Farm Show competition.

Tiffany Dean had the top senior Woolies Club record book, and Roanna Martin had the top junior Woolies Club record book.

The annual Woolies Club Scholarship, a $250 award, was given to Derick Bollinger, who has been active in the Woolies 4-H club for nine years and has exhibited more than 60 market lambs at 50 events. He was a member of the state 4-H champion meats judging team in 1999. Derick plans to pursue a career in animal science at Delaware Valley College.

2001 Shepherd of the Year honors went to Ryan Donough, a Woolies member for 10 years. Donough, who is president of the club, was a member of the 1999 state champion Meats Judging Team and has placed in the top five in the 2000 and 2001 state 4-H Livestock Judging Contest. As president of the club Ryan was given the Woolies Club President Award.

The Red Rose Beef Club had a big year at the Farm Show, as member Katie Nolt brought home the grand champion market steer honor.

Also Tiffany Dean, Strasburg, had reserve champion Angus steer. Tiffany also won the Red Rose 4-H Rookie Award.

Daniel Fox, New Holland, four-year member who has won the Intell Calf and the Lancaster Farming award, won the outstanding member award for the beef club.

Daniel has served in several 4-H offices for the club, is an active member of the Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association and has shown both steer and heifer champions. He keeps a small Angus breeding herd on the family's farm.

Jessica Schmidt had the top senior beef record book. Honorable mention went to Loren Hershey. Top junior beef record book honors went to Jaymi McMichael. Red Rose Beef Club President Award went to Loren Hershey.

The county goat club also gave out awards.

Nathan Eisenhower's goat won champion rate of gain honors, with reserve champion placing going to Amanda Grube. First place in the club record book was Bethany Keener, followed by Rachel Keener and Jennie Ream. Jennie also received the goat club president award. Bethany Keener took home the rookie of the year award, while Rachel Keener won the Jake Fisher Achievement Award.

Awards for the County Dairy Beef Club include "Above and Beyond" awards chosen by club leaders. Lisa Hershey, Cody Andrew, and Michael Musser were recognized as winners.

Top placings for the senior record books include first place to Lori Hess, followed by Sarah Graybill and Cheryl Ginder. Top three winners in the junior record books category were Kelly King, followed by Luke Hershey and Colton King.

Adam Zurin won the dairy beef club president award.

The County Swine Club recognized Loren Hershey, who had the champion Yorkshire market hog at the Farm Show, and Rachel Brubaker, who had the champion Berkshire market hog at the Farm Show.

In addition Lori Hess won the top senior record book honor. Top junior swine record book winner was Luke Hershey.

Derick Bollinger was recognized with the swine club president award. He was also given the Carl Nestleroth Outstanding Member Award. A nine-year 4-H member, Derick also exhibited animals at the Farm Show and won reserve champion Duroc market hog in 2000. He has helped with the 4-H benefit auction for five years.

Marlina Kreider, with her outstanding junior record book and completion of Level III of the Pork Quality Assurance program, was given the Rookie of the Year award. Marlina has twice placed first in showmanship at the 4-H Fair and Manheim Farm Show.

This group of 4-Hers took home honorable mention for their project books.

Penn State Extension Offers Horse Pasture Shortcourse

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension of Southeast PA is offering a "Horse Pasture Shortcourse" to be conducted on three consecutive Tuesday nights March 5, 12, and 19th, from 6:30 p.m.-9:30 p.m. at the Montgomery County 4-H Center in Creamery.

This course is open to all horse owners and will feature everything from controlling poisonous plants and weeds to renovating new pastures. Instructors will also cover animal needs (grazing versus turnout or exercise lots), the economics and value of good pasture, and understanding plant growth and soil fertility.

Learn when to lime and how to take that soil sample. Cost for the program is $15 per person and includes instruction, printed materials and light refreshments. The Montgomery County 4-H Center is located on Route 113, one mile south of Route 73 near Skippack, PA.

Reservations are accepted on first come, first served basis and the class size is limited. Deadline for reservations is March 3rd or until the class is filled.

For a copy of the brochure or to phone in reservations, please call the Montgomery County Extension Office at (610) 489-4315. Checks for $15 per person can be made payable to "Mont. Co. Ext. Special Account" and sent to: "Horse Pasture Shortcourse", c/o Nancy Kadwill, 1015 Bridge Road, Suite H, Collegeville, PA. 19426. # Pennsylvania Sheep Inventory Up 6 Percent From Year Ago

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — All sheep and lamb inventory in Pennsylvania on Jan. 1, 2002 totaled 86,000, up six percent from the previous year according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Total inventory included 55,000 breeding ewes one-year-old and older, up 1,000 head from the 54,000 on Jan. 1, 2001.

There were 12,000 replacement lambs, 20 percent more than last year. Rams one-year-old and older totaled 6,000, also up 20 percent from a year ago.

Market sheep and lambs totaled 13,000 on Jan. 1, 2002, up eight percent from last year. Of this total, 10,000 were market lambs and 2,000 were market sheep.

The 2001 lamb crop of 71,000 head was one percent more than 2000. The 2001 lambing rate was 131 lambs per 100 ewes one-year-old and older on hand Jan. 1, 2001, up from 130 lambs per 100 ewes the previous year.

An estimated 2,500 Pennsylvania farms raised sheep during 2001, unchanged from the previous year.

President Speaks to 5,000 Cattle Industry Members in Denver

DENVER, Colo. — President Bush spoke to more than 5,000 cattle industry members at the 2002 Cattle Industry and Trade Show recently.

Lynn Cornwell, president of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) and a beef producer from Glasgow, Mont., called the president's remarks "a great tribute to the one million men and women who work our nation's cattle ranches and make up the largest segment of America's food and fiber industry."

During his visit to the industry meeting, President Bush outlined his commitment to a $73.5 billion U.S. Farm Bill that is affordable, provides fair and expanded international trade, includes farm savings accounts for ranching families, and recognizes the role of ranchers in land conservation.

On the international trade front, President Bush renewed his commitment to ensuring beef producers have the opportunity to market U.S. beef to consumers around the world. "We want the people in China eating U.S. beef," the President said.

"Every rancher in the room, and probably the country, cheered as the President recognized the incredible opportunity for expanded beef exports," Cornwell said. Mr.

Bush also noted his support for knocking down trade barriers in the European market.

The President outlined the importance of farm savings accounts, which will help farmers and ranchers manage their economic risk over time and keep the America's food industry in good financial health.

"As a rancher himself, President Bush is a strong advocate for helping farmers help themselves," Cornwell said. "Farm savings accounts will offer beef producers a chance to minimize financial difficulties throughout the supply cycle."

Finally, Bush recognized the collective wisdom of American farmers and their role as good stewards of the land. "Every day is Earth Day for people who rely upon the land to make a living," the President said.

In addition to voicing support for a strong U.S. Farm Bill, the President praised convention attendees and all ranchers across the country for their values of hard work, family and self-reliance. He pointed to recent victories by American ranchers, including this country's ability to keep foreign animal diseases out of America's cattle herds and the repeal of the Estate Tax (also known as the Death Tax).

"The repeal of the Death Tax will allow families to pass our assets on from one generation to the next," the President said. "We've sent it on its way to extinction."

"This visit from the President is icing on the cake for our industry's national convention," said Cornwell. "Despite some difficult economic times, we have increased demand for beef, new marketing opportunities and a sense of pride in our industry and our nation."

Restaurant Partnership Opens New Doors For Beef Industry

DENVER, Colo. — Through the beef checkoff, beef producers are partnering with a national restaurant chain to satisfy consumer demand for steak in restaurants.

The foodservice chain that includes Ground Round Grill & Bar and Tin Alley Grill restaurants has become the first to promote "beef value cuts" on the menu.

Value cuts are single muscle portions taken from the chuck and round. At one time these muscles would have been bundled and sold together, or ground into hamburger. Through the beef industry's checkoff-funded muscle profiling study, individual muscle palatability and functionality was analyzed, and it became possible to separate and sell them as moderately priced steaks.

This foodservice partnership is funded in part by the $1-per-head checkoff, which is administered by the Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB). It is being coordinated by the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA).

"The objective of the beef industry is to offer a restaurant chain a mid-value steak, below middle meats but above ground beef," said Seminole, Okla. beef producer Lisa Hefner, vice chair of the CBB/NCBA Joint Foodservice Committee. "Ground Round restaurants charbroil all their steaks, so their Ranch Cut should make for a wonderful dining experience."

The Ranch Cut steak is being introduced and promoted at 104 Ground Rounds and 10 Tin Alley Grills in 21 states, in addition to 35 franchise stores. These restaurants are located predominately in the northern and northeastern U.S., from North Dakota to New England, and are owned by American Hospitality Concepts Inc. in Braintree, Mass.

The promotion, which started January 14 and runs through March 31, includes newspaper and menu inserts, coupons, and point of purchase materials inside the restaurants. Promotional materials will carry the Beef Checkoff logo.

Environmental Technologies In Spotlight

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania ag and environmental leaders this week gathered at the Holiday Inn here for a three day conference that focused on a host of techniques for controlling nutrient and sediment problems.

About 300 state environmental, conservation, and ag professionals heard presentations on numerous innovative technologies, pollution prevention practices, and management strategies. Much of the focus was directed to the growing nutrient management concerns created by the heavy concentration of livestock production in Pennsylvania.

Charles Abdalla, Penn State associate professor of ag economics, said that the Pennsylvania poultry and livestock industries account for about 70 percent of the $4.18 billion received by the state's farmers annually.

The environmental impact of these industries can have different implications for different people — depending on what is at stake, according to Abdalla.

"Different stakeholders will perceive effects differently," including people and organizations with particular environmental concerns, Abdalla said. "Third-party effects are significant."

Abdalla noted that public policy has been slow in responding to the complexities of industrialization such as water quality issues and regional nutrient surpluses caused by feed being shipped in from other areas.

"It seems our institutions on public policy lag in this," he said.

Dr. Tom Simpson, coordinator of Chesapeake Bay Programs at the University of Maryland, presented the possibilities of alternative agricultural systems that enhance profitability.

Future options include more production of "low impact crops" such as warm season grasses and perennnial grains.

"We may find that there is an alternative to corn and soybeans," he said.

According to Simpson, initiatives proposed in the federal Farm Bill include a nutrient reduction program that would reward farmers for applying smaller amounts of fertilizer. Another is the development of "working lands" with multiple benefits beside food production.

"Low profitability and high environmental impacts create opportunities to evaluate opportunities," Simpson said.

"We're in a unique time," he said."A year or two ago these ideas seemed crazy."

Methods, topics, and technologies presented at the seminar included:

- Thermal processing for animal wastes
- Permanent cover cropping
- Feeding strategies to minimize waste excretion in swine and poultry
- Retrofitting lagoons for nutrient reduction
- Grass-based livestock production
- Biological nutrient removal in wastewater
- Composting facilities and opportunities
- Biorefinery processing of manure
- Worm digestion of dairy manure
- Soil carbon sequestration
- Reclaimed wastewater for agriculture
- Integrating the phosphorus index into nutrient management planning
- "Smart" phosphorus fertilizers
- Marketing and transportation of excess poultry litter
- Living machines
- Earthworm composting of biosolids

The conference was moderated by Peter Slack of the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection and Allison Wiedeman of the EPA's Chesapeake Bay Program.

U.S. Sheep, Lamb Inventory Down Four Percent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — All sheep and lamb inventory in the U.S. on Jan. 1, 2002, totaled 6.69 million head, down 4 percent from 2001 and 5 percent below two years ago, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS). The inventory has trended down since peaking at 56.2 million head in 1942.

Breeding sheep inventory declined to 4.91 million head on Jan. 1, 2002, down 1 percent from 4.97 million head on Jan. 1, 2001. Ewes one year old and older, at 3.98 million head, were 3 percent below last year.

Market sheep and lambs on Jan. 1, 2002, totaled 1.77 million head, down 11 percent from Jan. 1, 2001. Market lambs comprised 96 percent of the total. Twenty-five percent were lambs under 65 pounds, 17 percent were 65-84 pounds, 23 percent 85-105 pounds, 31 percent were more than 105 pounds, and 4 percent were market sheep.

The 2001 lamb crop of 4.50 million head was down 3 percent from 2000 and established a new record low. The 2001 lambing rate was 110 per 100 ewes one year old and older on Jan. 1, 2001, compared with 109 in 2000.

The number of operations with sheep during 2001 totaled 65,120, down 1 percent from 2000 and 3 percent from 1999.

Shorn wool production in the U.S. during 2001 was 43 million pounds, down 7 percent from 2000. Sheep and lambs shorn totaled 5.69 million head, down 7 percent from 2000. The average price paid for wool sold in 2001 was $0.36 per pound for a total value of $15.3 million, down slightly from $15.4 million in 2000.

79 Bulls On Test At Evaluation Center

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Livestock Evaluation Center wishes to announce the annual bull performance testing program is well under way.

Seventy-nine bulls have been on test for 56 days thus far. This group of bulls is gaining at a record-setting pace. With the 112-day test half completed, 22 of the bulls have maintained gains in excess of five pounds per day.

One of these bulls, the Angus bull consigned by Ryan Dunkelberger, has recorded a gain of 6.26 pounds per day. This fastest gaining bull is a moderate framed son of DHD Traveler 6807. The second fastest gaining bull over all breeds is the Conneally Leadtime son consigned by Oren Smith. This February born Angus bull has gained 5.96 pounds per day through the 56 days.

The 53 Angus bulls, four of which are red, on test have attained a breed average daily gain of 4.43 pounds per day thus far.

The 21 Simmental bulls on test have recorded a breed average daily gain of 4.16 pounds per day. The two fastest gaining Simmentals thus far are the solid black bulls consigned by H. Robert McQuiston. The son of LRS Preferred Stock has gained 5.65 pounds per day and the son of WAR Dynamite 620 has gained 5.09 pounds per day on test.

The third fastest gaining Simmental, the solid black bull consigned by Jack Herr, is close behind, gaining 5.07 pounds per day.

The three Hereford bulls on test are averaging 3.68 pounds per day. The Ralph Strouse bred bull by WILL Via Headline S133 gained and breed-leading 4.36 pounds per day and the Circle-D 832W Einstn son consigned by Frank Phoenix has gained 3.96 pounds per day.

The Red Limousin bull bred by David and Lynda Miller has gained 4.37 pounds per day and the Charolais bull consigned by Ray Bratton has gained 4.62 pounds per day.

Preparations are being finalized for PA's 29th Annual Performance Tested Bull Sale scheduled for Friday, March 29 at 11 a.m. in the Ag Arena on the campus of Penn State. The bull sale will again be part of the Pa. Beef Expo which will run Thursday, March 28 through Saturday, March 30.

Forest Stewardship For Profit

LISBON, Md. — In Maryland, 85 percent of forest land is privately owned. If you are of these landowners, are you managing your forestland to reach your goals of appearance, wildlife, and profit?

If you aren't sure, then you should attend "Dollars from Woodlots: Stewardship for Profit," at the Howard County Mid-Winter Agriculture Meeting. The meeting is 7-9 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 20 at the Lisbon Fire Hall (1330 Woodbine Rd., Lisbon).

You will learn how to develop a forest stewardship plan, how to work with a forester, and how to manage wildlife. In addition, you will learn how to lower your property taxes, manage a timber harvest, and possibly generate some alternate income.

Jonathan Kays, regional specialist for natural resources with Maryland Cooperative Extension, will be the guest speaker.

The meeting is co-sponsored by the Howard Soil Conservation District (HSCD), Maryland Cooperative Extension — Howard County (MCE), and the Natural Resource Conservation Service. There is no fee, but preregistration is required. Call the HSCD at (410) 489-7987 or MCE at (410) 313-2707 by Feb. 18 to register.

Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) Help Dairy Systems

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Like many dairy producers, Dave Fava and his family at Co-Hill Farms in Washington County have found reproduction in the herd to be a real challenge.

The herd expanded recently and as many people discover, expansion must be accompanied with new management practices. For Co-Hill farms heat detection was an activity that really needed to change.

Co-Hill Farms found that the key managers in the operation could no longer effectively detect heats. They were simply too busy. In addition, the key managers needed to take on new responsibilities. Fava decided that fine-tuning was not the answer, the whole system had to change.

Fava worked with his farm staff and advisers to develop a standard operating procedure (SOP) for heat detection. Individuals were assigned responsibility for observing the cows at specified times during the day. Heat detection periods lasted 30 minutes each and there were three periods spaced throughout each 24-hour day. The heat detection periods were planned to take place at times when the cows were most likely to show observable signs of heat.

In order to maximize the observer's ability to see the cows, and minimize disturbance caused by his or her presence, Co-Hill staff built a heat observation platform in the free stall barn. The platform dramatically improved observers' ability to see the entire barn at once.In order to increase observers' ability to detect heat from both primary and secondary signs, Fava provided training for his staff. He also developed a heat detection card that observers must complete during the heat detection period. At the end of the heat detection period, cards are placed in a box for Fava to review. The cards tell him that the cows were observed and list information about cows that may be in heat.

So far, the new system is working well. Co-Hill farms has improved heat detection to the point that greater than 50 percent of possible heats are detected every month, even during the summer.You can also improve your operation by learning the systematic SOP process. Dairy Alliance is teaming with cooperative extension to offer SOP workshops near you that teach this process.For more information about content of the SOP Workshops, contact Richard Stup at (814) 652-6430 or RichStup@psu.edu. # PDMP Meeting To Focus On Sexed Semen

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The annual meeting of the Professional Dairy Managers of Pennsylvania (PDMP), open to all progressive dairy producers, will feature several speakers addressing new dairy technologies including sexed semen.

Scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 28 at the Holiday Inn, Grantville, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., the purpose of the meeting is to bring Pennsylvania's progressive dairy producers together for learning and fellowship. The featured speakers include Dr. George Seidel from Colorado State University, Dr. Bennet Cassell from Virginia Tech, and Greg Henderson from Monsanto.

George Seidel's topic is "How Are Sperm Sexed?" Dr. Seidel will be sharing his laboratory and on-farm experiences with the soon to be commercial technology of sexing semen. He was raised on a Pennsylvania dairy farm and has been at the Animal Reproduction and Biotechnology Laboratory, College of Veterinary Medicine and Biomedical Sciences, at Colorado State University in Fort Collins for the past 29 years.

Bennet Cassell will be addressing the question of "How Sexed Semen Might Change Your Breeding Program." Cassell is an extension dairy scientist in genetics and management at Virginia Tech. One focus of his research is to help farmers identify and use economically sound breeding objectives.

Greg Henderson is a member of Monsanto's Industry Affairs Team. In this role, Henderson works with dairy co-ops, processors, and retail food companies in the East on issues of importance to the dairy industry.

For membership information, contact Special Projects Manager Beth Moore at (717) 375-2910 or e-mail beth@innernet.net or visit the Website http://www.das.psu.edu/user/pdmp.

Reservations for the annual meeting are required. Cost per person for members is $10 and for nonmembers is $25. Please call Tammy Perkins toll-free to RSVP at (888) 373-7232 or e-mail at tap10@psu.edu.

Patz MANURE SOLUTIONS

ENVIRONMENTAL
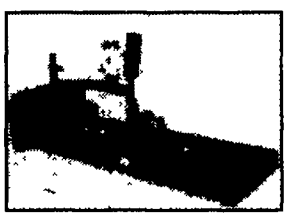
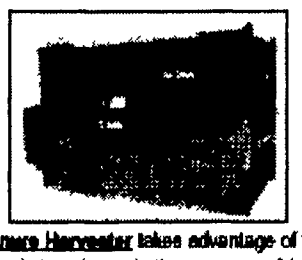
FRIENDLY

The Patz Pulsator land applies the treated liquids using a pulsating jet action to disperse liquids on preselected sites. The Patz Pulsator virtually eliminates odor. Liquids are applied in an environmentally acceptable method.

The Patz Non-Clogging Screen prevents any solid material from entering the Patz Pulsator Pump which would result in blockage and pump burn out.



The Patz Pulsator Pump is fed treated liquids from the surface of the storage area via a floating suction line from the Patz Non-Clogging Screen. The Patz Pulsator Pump moves the treated liquids to a site determined by your nutrient management plan for land application.



The Patz Manure Harvester takes advantage of the concentration of phosphorus in the manure solids by removing up to 50% of the solids from dairy manure. A significant amount of the phosphorus is then concentrated in a much smaller volume. What makes the Patz Manure Harvester different is that both the small and larger solid particles are removed, unlike some other separators that remove only the larger particles.

The Patz Aerator encourages the aerobic digestion of the remaining liquids. This virtually eliminates the odor emanating from the storage area, making neighbors more willing to accept the presence of your operation. Also since the liquids are removed from the top of the storage basin, additional phosphorus reductions are possible from the settling and aeration process.

Cow Comfort, Health Vital When Selecting Stall System

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Whatever stall system is used, either tiestall or freestall, dairy producers should keep several factors in mind when selecting what's best for the farm.

No matter what system, cows should be able to rise and recline freely and be comfortable when resting. The system should provide protection, promote cleanliness and udder health, and minimize injury, according to a Penn State extension specialist.

Dan McFarland spoke about ways to select for proper stall design and management late last week during a tiestall management meeting at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The Penn State-sponsored event drew about four dozen dairy producers and agri-industry representatives.

Many times, just the very "design" and nature of a cow makes it difficult for even the best ag engineers. The udder area is a place where cows are excreting waste products. "Cows are designed wrong," said McFarland. "The udder should be at the brisket (breast or lower chest)."

There are many factors that producers should be aware of to ensure cow comfort, which translates into milk productivity. None the least, McFarland noted, is the tie chain on a stall. If the tie chain restricts cow's movement, it "could affect longevity, health, and profitability" of the animal.

In a freestall system, because of the openness, cows "have a better opportunity to tell you what they like and don't like," McFarland said. Dairy producers should keep in mind the cow is resting 10-14 hours per day, a time when "the rumen's going, converting things to be sold."

McFarland noted the optimum designs for tiestalls, which should be between 68-70 inches in length for large-framed breeds and 51-54 inches width, center to center.

McFarland reviewed many factors, including resting positions, bedding, slope, front curb, rear edge, improving existing stalls, structure type and dimensions, tie chains, manger guards, and grates.

The goal is to keep cows back to keep them clean, and encourage them forward to reach feed. This allows them to get maximum dry intake and encourage cleanliness.

Keeping cows dry and comfortable while reducing injuries can result in better milk production.

Dr. Arlen Mills, Capitol Region Dairy Team herd health specialist, reviewed the importance of biosecurity. Biosecurity involves keeping the problems out and biocontainment involves "not spreading the problems around."

In biosecurity, people all do not represent the same degree of risk. Those who do not require contact should be kept out of the tiestall areas.

Producers also should be aware of animal transport (keeping trailers and personnel clean, and loading away from critical areas), and animals coming onto farm should be clear of disease and vaccinated.

Also, if farms have pets, they could help spread disease.

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster dairy agent, noted that producers should understand "if you get more milk per cow, you can reduce fixed operating costs per hundredweight and reduce capital costs per hundredweight."

The benchmark is one million pounds of milk per dairy worker.

Shirk reviewed ways to improve the barn, including looking into different types of stalls, to "find one that meets your needs."

Tiestalls can provide improved individual cow care, but there are management practices and design issues that come into play.

GIPSA Finds Discrepancies In 'Captive Supplies' Of Top Four Beef Packers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The USDA's Grain Inspection, Packers and Stockyards Administration (GIPSA) Jan. 18 released a report that clarifies the definition of captive supplies and announced ways that the department can ensure clear reporting of information in the future.

The report was conducted in response to a Congressional mandate in the 2001 Agricultural Appropriations Bill.

The report, "Captive Supply of Cattle and GIPSA's Reporting of Captive Supply," clarifies GIPSA's definition of the term "captive supply," and compares GIPSA's captive supply statistics to statistics published by other organizations, including USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service. The report also compares 1999 procurement transactions data of the top four beef packers to summarize captive supply data the packers submitted to GIPSA.

Report highlights follow:

• Differences in captive supply statistics reported by various organizations result from conflicting definitions and variations in the geographical bases of the data collection. GIPSA defines captive supplies based on whether a packer commits to purchase livestock before the animals are ready for slaughter.

• GIPSA's analysis of the top four beef packers' 1999 transactions data revealed that the summary captive supply statistics the packers reported to GIPSA included cattle procured from non-reporting subsidiaries, affiliates, owners, and employees, if the animals were procured through a captive supply arrangement.

• Based on its review of the top four packers' transactions records, GIPSA found that captive supplies accounted for 32.3 percent of the firms' total slaughter rather than 25.2 percent, as reported in the packers' annual reports to GIPSA. The data discrepancies are attributed to misunderstandings about captive supply definitions and computational errors.

GIPSA announced the following actions in response to the findings.

• GIPSA will publish its definition of captive supply in the Federal Register. The definition is this: livestock that is owned or fed by a packer more than 14 days prior to slaughter, livestock that is procured by a packer through a contract or marketing agreement that has been in place for more than 14 days prior to slaughter, and livestock that is otherwise committed to a packer more than 14 days prior to slaughter.

• Revise the Packer Annual Report form to clarify reporting definitions.

• Audit future Packer Annual Reports.

• Report captive supply information in more detail.

Copies of the report are online at http://www.usda.gov/gipsa/pubs/captive—supply/captive.

COWS LOVE 'EM

Our Palatable High Performing Pasture/Hay Mixture

We graze our own dairy herd and harvest a lot of excess forage as balage. Thus we get to see how our varieties perform under on-farm conditions (both in the field and the milk tank.) We have the pasture mixes to fit your needs! Choose from our popular King's Grazing Mix which provides dairy quality forages on varying soil types, or our drought tolerant Highland Hay/Grazing Mix which includes a good grazing tolerant alfalfa for drier areas. Or we can fix you up with a custom mix to fit your needs. We have a wide variety of seed in stock.

5% Discount to Feb. 25

We use only the best clean High Quality seed in our mixtures. Varieties are chosen which are adapted to the Mid-Atlantic region, and which complement each other in the mix. We look for palatability, drought tolerance, yield, heading date, persistence, disease resistance, and more. High quality forages are the key to profitable milk production.

MAKE HAY WHEN THE SUN SHINES!

With our late maturing BARLIZA TIMOTHY

Barliza Timothy from Barenbrug matures later than other Timothies allowing you more time to make hay while the sunshines! Barliza has a better leaf-to-stem ratio and makes very high quality hay. Barliza Timothy can withstand intensive grazing and cutting better than most Timothies, thus it is also good in pasture mixtures! (Ask for our BG 23 plus – blend of BG34 Ryegrass, Barliza and Clovers)

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Whiffs of roast beef, ham balls, and omelets made to order welcomed the crowd that gathered for the 89th annual meeting of the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Association last Thursday evening at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

Dr. Gregory B. Martin, left, Capitol Region poultry specialist, and Andy Bradford, president of the county Poultry Association, take a break from flipping omelets.

The social hour filled with tastes of Lancaster County's commodities, including potatoes, apples, dairy, beef, pork, and poultry, demonstrated the county's diverse ag operations — whose successes are firmly entrenched with the many services the extension offers.

A recap of the services the extension provided during the past year was presented with a slide overview. This year, 4-H marks its centennial celebration. The youth program was founded Jan. 15, 1902 in Ohio as a boys and girls experimental club. It's purpose was to building character in youth through three H's — heart, home, and hands — rather than solely through the well-touted three R's (reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic). Later, 4-H added a fourth H for health.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Once again, life is going on hold for a little while every evening.

It's Winter Olympics time!

Television gets attention in our household primarily for weather, news, and special events. And while it may be turned on for an hour or two every evening after the barn chores are finished, The Farmer usually falls asleep after five minutes while I read the newspaper with only occasional eye or ear notice paid to the tube.

Winter Olympics coverage holds our attention much better.

The Summer Olympics are entertaining, but they rarely compare in the breathtaking background scenery of venues sited amidst snow-covered mountain splendor and excitement of events.

High jumping and discus throwing are interesting, but no comparison to the breakneck challenge of a Super G skiing competition. Sculling teams muscularly powering their long, slender crafts area incredibly graceful, but don't pack the hold-your-breath impact of a skier launching off a jump. Long-distance speed running is admirable for the incredible training and discipline required, but lacks the visual thrill of a you-are-there-via-a-mounted-camera ride down a twisting, turning bobsled trail dropping hundreds of feet per second.

Every time Winter Olympics rolls around, I'm convinced all over again that we farmers are missing the boat by not having an Agriculture Winter Games, which would be naturally staged in a farm venue. A few we practice immediately come to mind.

Like classic Icy Pasture Sliding, gathering 50 breeding-age heifers in across an ice-coated pasture. Scoring would be based on speed and style, with points deducted for heifers escaped, heifers down and crashes by the competitor. You could have both singles and doubles competition. (Sort of like hockey, but without the sticks).

Meadow Mogul Maneuvering could be run on snowshoes through a frozen, snowcovered section of a meadow area where the herd travels enroute to the water troughs. Competitors must make a speed dash though lanes of pockmarked, ruts of mud frozen solid by three days of 10-degree temps and a brisk north wind.

Snowplow Tug O'War would work best as mixed-pairs event, featuring a male and female duo teamed to remove a pickup truck snowplow from a giant snowdrift where it is buried up to the hood. Equipment would include a pulling tractor with half-tread tires and a tow chain with a weak hookup link. Competitors may communicate only through hand signals.

Then there's the Feedbag Luge, where an icy track is slicked up each night by refreezing snowmelt from the higher side of the barn. This is a singles competition, in which the feedbag rider simply gets a running start and throws himself or herself onto the 50-pound bag of feed and sleds down to the calf feeding area. Ripping the bag will disqualify the rider from the event.

While Utah finally got the wintry-weather it was counting on to effectively host the Winter Games, we here in southcentral Pennsylvania are mostly lacking white and frozen stuff this year. As a result, we find ourselves unable to properly practice for the above events and are instead making do with some less exciting winter ag sports.

By spells, we've gotten a little practice in Frozen Water Bucket Block Relays. Aim is to see how high a wall of solid, bucket-shaped ice blocks one can construct before the sun melts it down into a puddle. Could be a team or doubles sport, but generally played here as a singles race against the normal time crunch and bawling, thirsty calves.

A family favorite is the Paper Bedding Launch, staged in the venue of the heifer pens. Equipment is ordinary newspaper, delivered packed in bags and bundles by recycling-minded friends and neighbors. Unlike some folks, we do not shred this paper before use, just pitch it — Frisby style — by the handfuls. Technical points are scored on coverage achieved, distance of toss, and uniformity of spread. Style-scoring leans more toward gracefulness, creativity of delivery and how many heifers one can get excited enough to race around the pen kicking up their heels.

As you might guess, this is a favorite of the grandchildren. What other competition wins them praise and applause for throwing newspaper all over the place?

And, it even has its own "kiss and cry" area, depending on who accidentally hit who with what paper or who found the comics strip sheet or tractor ads pieces first and won't share.

Let the games begin.

Night To Remember

tor, had upon agriculture. It was less than a year ago, that Schwartz transferred to the York Extension to work closer to his home in order to spend more time with his wife and two children. At that time, no one suspected that Schwartz would die from natural causes a few months later. In his memory, the extension has established a leadership award for extension agents in the capitol region.

Livestock Agent Chet Hughes and Horticulture Agent Tim Elkner were awarded distinguished service awards for developing comprehensive programs in their respective fields.

Suzanne Schmalhofer, who is retiring after 36 years as extension secretary, was surprised by a video reviewing her years with the extension and by gifts and speeches given by coworkers.

Dr. Michelle Rodger, regional director, said that the current national crisis resulting from Sept. 11, 2001 events, is a reminder for the continual need for unity and cooperation for which the cooperative extension was founded. Good can often spring forth despite tragic events, she said. She referred to 1862, when the nation struggled with a Civil War. But it was also the time President Lincoln helped establish land grant universities, from which extension services are derived.

Softened Water Can Cause Hard Times For Indoor Plants

YORK (York Co.) — If your indoor plants or plants brought in for the winter seemed to be faring poorly, a Penn State horticulture expert suggests taking a hard look at softened water as the culprit.

"There isn't any research that tells us which plants can be injured, but plants do vary widely in their tolerance for softened water" says J. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in the college of agricultural sciences. "In many cases, water from a mechanical softener will harm plant growth."

Nuss explains the hard water contains large amounts of calcium and magnesium, which are plant nutrients. However, these minerals reduce how well soap lathers when washing clothes or other items. "The minerals and hard water often combine with soap to form the ring you see in bathtubs or wash bowls," he says.

Many homeowners soften water by using a filtration systems to exchange the calcium and magnesium in the water for sodium, creating a softer water that allows soap to function better.

"Sodium is used by plants only in very small amounts," Nuss says. "Over long periods of time, too much sodium becomes toxic."

Nuss says excess sodium will damage the soil quality around the plant's root system by breaking down the soil structure, thus reducing drainage. Nuss says savvy plant lovers can save their plants in many ways.

Leaching. Using rainwater or unsoftened water to water your plants will leach high levels of sodium out of the soil.

Elevation. By placing your plant on gravel or a similar material, a reservoir is formed to collect water passing through the soil. "Never allow plants to stand in softened water," Ness warns.

Repotting. Fresh potting soil will provide a new environment for the roots, free of excess salts. Other water additives used by municipal water systems, chlorine and fluorine, also can harm some plants. Ness says they are trace elements that are needed in very small amounts to keep plants healthy. "In excess, like sodium, and they can be toxic," he says.

Chlorine generally presents less of a headache for houseplants, Nuss explains. "Chlorine can be eliminated from water by heating or aeration, or by letting the water stand in a container overnight before watering the plants."

Fluorine can adversely affect plants at concentrations as low as 0.1 ppm. In some municipal water supplies, 10 times that amount is added to prevent tooth decay. "A good indicator of fluorine content is the spider plant or Chlorophytum, which will show spotted leaves or burned tips when fluorine is present," Nuss says.

Houseplants gardeners can deter the effects of fluorine by adding two teaspoons of limestone for six-inch pot of soil. Lime raises the pH of the soil and combined with fluoride in a chemical insoluble form that plants cannot take up through the roots, according to Nuss.

Have A Happy (Healthy) Heart Month

One of the best holidays of the year is Valentine's Day, a playful day to express our love to those who are special to us.

It is appropriate that the American Heart Association chose February to highlight approaches to keeping our heart healthy. Heart disease is the number one cause of death in the U.S. and many of us live with risk factors and symptoms that we control with medication, exercise and diet. Because many symptoms are "silent," we often ignore their presence until we get a warning in the form of a heart attack, stroke, shortness of breath, dizzyness or abnormal lab reports.

While the relationship between diet and health has been known since the beginning of time, the connection between chronic disease and certain nutrients and diets has been studied most extensively in the last half century. Certain studies such as the Framingham Heart study is following families into their third generation, outliving some of researchers! The results of all of this research indicates that those who live longest eat more fruits and vegetables, more fiber, and less fat and sodium.

High blood pressure is a symptom of heart disease that affects a quarter of all Americans but jumps to 60 percent of those over age 60. The National Institutes of Health recently funded a study to investigate if dietary changes could help to lower blood pressure. The DASH (Dietary Approach to Stop Hypertension) diet was shown to lower to blood pressure in individuals with both normal and elevated blood pressure.

The DASH diet follows the food guide pyramid with an increase in fruits and vegetables to at least eight a day, emphasizes whole grain breads and cereals, stresses the importance of low-fat dairy foods and includes nuts, seeds and legumes as a group to include 4-5 times a week.

All of this, plus the recommendation that many of us should lose weight and get more exercise. How can we do it all and enjoy life?!

An approach that addresses many of the recommendations of the DASH diet is to increase the intake of fruits and vegetables. Fruits and vegetables are low in fat, high in fiber, and lower in calories than many other foods.

Eight a day is a lofty goal, including two with each meal and two more as snacks! Many of us only eat two or three a day, so it may take some time to increase your daily intake to the recommended amount.

Here are some suggestions that I have been trying.

Add fruit to breakfast cereal-hot or cold, put slices of apples or oranges on bagels with peanut butter, include vegetables in scrambled eggs or salsa with other eggs. Try to include whole grain cereals, bagels or toast with your breakfast. Don't forget the fruit or vegetable juice and milk. This may sound like a lot of breakfast, but even weight loss specialists emphasis the importance of starting the day with something in your stomach.

The easiest way to include vegetables in lunch is to select foods like soups, salads, and casseroles (or even vegetable pizza) with lots of vegetables. When fruits and vegetables are a large portion of your meal, the higher fat meats and sweets occupy less of your calories. Add your own fruit to yogurt, pack baby carrots or other vegetables for snacks, portion leftover vegetables from dinner to pack for lunch and keep lowfat or fat free dressings on hand to make vegetable snacks more inviting.

Most of us already include vegetables in our dinner — so keep up the good work! Make your meat portions about the size of a deck of cards and try some low salt seasonings such as herbs or commercial products. Try a few to see what you like. Fresh fruits and vegetables are low in sodium but low sodium canned vegetables and frozen fruits and vegetables are still good choices.

Making changes can be fun if the changes bring rewards.

Give a valentine gift to those you love (including yourself) of better health. Grab an apple and enjoy!

'Mountain Of Mums' Draws Customers To Ott's

SCHWENKSVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — What do you do with a mountain of soil

Create the Mountain of Mums, of course

That's what happened be ginning back in 1961 when earth was moved into a pile to build some greenhouses for Ott's Exotic Plants on Rt. 29 near Schwenksville

The story goes Godfrey Ott told his children Godfrey H and Clarke to go pull some weeds out of a pile that had gone unsightly said Godfrey H Ott Ott said that the weeds being an eyesore were replaced by some mums and then panned in the spring for customers to appreciate

So why not make a hill of yellows the color of lemon ade from an unsightly lemon?

We made the dirt pile with plants said Ott And

Urban Farm Connects With Community, Rural Producers

PHILADELPHIA — Farmers wanted

That's the rallying call of The Food Trust, a farmer's market association operating in the Philadelphia area.

The Farmer's Market Trust — as the organization was known until recently — was started 10 years ago at Philadelphia's Reading Terminal Market according to Duane Perry, founder and executive director

The goal was to create farmer's markets operating in community settings Perry said

During the 2001 growing season the nonprofit organization operated 10 markets in eight locations within Philadelphia and its suburbs.

Set up in a variety of settings such as sidewalks and parks the markets are attracting a growing number of urban people who care about the sources of their food said Perry

There's a really solid group of consumers interested in connecting with farmers, he said

Twenty seven farmers in 2001 supplied a wide array of agricultural products to the markets from baked goods, cut flowers and conventionally-grown fruits and vegetables to organic produce and specialty items such as high end salad greens.

PHILADELPHIA — Mary Corboy lives in downtown Philadelphia and bikes regularly to the farm she manages.

From her home the farm is a few dozen blocks away on an abandoned industrial or brownfield site in a residential neighborhood on the east side of the city near Route 95.

It was just a trash dump Corboy said of the ¼ acre site before she took it over in 1998 and established the Greensgrow Philadelphia Project

Made possible through a lease agreement with the local community development corporation the project was started from scratch No plumbing electricity or useful structures existed on the site — except for a metal wire fence around the perimeter of the property

Originally started as a hydroponic operation for growing lettuce Greensgrow has since expanded to include methods for cultivating a wide variety of crops including tomatoes specialty vegetables and flowers

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Nestled among eastern Pennsylvania towns and edged by housing developments are the 90 rolling acres that comprise Varner Family Farm

The farm which is in the Montgomery County Farmland Preservation Program stands in contrast to an increasingly urbanized area

Most of the farmland around here is growing houses said Varner Besides homes also located nearby are large pharmaceutical companies

The Varners however have been able to take advantage of the marketing opportunity that has presented itself

The flowers produce and Pick your own option for the small orchard pumpkin patches and Christmas trees make the farm a favorite stop for customers

The reason we're going to pick your own products is because that's what our market wants said Varner We've realized that we're in the entertainment farm business

Starting With Trees

A graduate of Delaware Valley College Varner got his bachelor's degree in horticulture before coming back to apply his knowledge to the farm

The land that he grew up on and is now farming dates back to his grandfather in 1820 Varner's father Bob sold the dairy operation when Rob was a child and rented out the acreage

A trip to Carbon County as a Boy Scout planted the idea of growing Christmas

The Farmstand: Direct Marketing Tips

SELLING MABEL PEACHES BEFORE THE GUY NEXT DOOR DOES?

Selling at growers markets is always a challenge and is probably as much an art form as it is a business for those who are successful in the venture

Customers can range from rude and cheap to those willing to try any of your new products at whatever the price you set.

Your best supporters are making the other vendors where you are when you don't show up at the market one week. Customers are your lifeblood and appealing to their needs and wants is what makes you successful or not (with success being defined here as profitable)

So how about a few marketing tips before you set up for a new marketing season?

Sell yourself first a good marketer knows it's not always what you sell but instead how you sell it. Think back to the image you had at the market last year. Were you seen as a seller of quality and freshness or a wholesaler of quantity? And what is the first impression to people as they walked up (or right by)? Did they see something that enticed them to stop and take notice?

IPM For Cut Flowers

Lately I've started to receive questions and phone calls regarding production of cut flowers. This interest in cut flowers is consistent with the trend for producers of all crops looking for new items to grow to help increase revenue in their operations

Unfortunately like many of the other specialty crops I'm asked about there's no one complete resource I can refer a potential producer to regarding cut flower production There is some information available regarding cut flower production but it must be collected from a variety of sources

One particularly difficult area to find information on regarding cut flower production is pest control. This is most likely a result of two factors first the great variety of flowers that can be grown (and thus a wide range of pest problems) and second the lack of chemical controls available for some of these crops.

The small total acreage of any one type of flower pro-

Consuming Thoughts

Did you know that supermarkets, the most frequent shopping destinations are often high-crime locations?

Recently several women have had their purses stolen, or more frequently had wallets stolen from purses in supermarkets. Two of these women thought they had "misplaced" the wallet at home and did not report it.

Here are several hints for supermarket shopping:

1. Never set your purse on a shopping cart - not even for a minute - keep it on your arm or put the shoulder straps over your head so your purse will be in front of you - always keep the purse closed.
2. If you do lose a purse or wallet in a supermarket, report it at once and ask the store personnel to help you try and find it. A supermarket robber, to avoid keeping incriminating evidence on his person, will remove the cash and the credit cards and then discard the wallet.
3. If you lose your purse and it contains keys to your house and identification, change the locks on your home and car. Hardware stores will have new locks or some locksmith can reset some locks and recut new keys. Car dealers will have lock changes for cars.
4. While paying for your groceries, only remove the amount of money needed - don't "flash" a lot of money. Better still; pay by check or credit card.
5. Watch while your groceries are being bagged and make sure all bags are placed in your cart. Sometimes several orders are being bagged and the previous customer may inadvertently take your bag too.
6. Lock your car after placing groceries in the car. Then, return the cart after checking to make sure you have removed all items, even the heavier ones stored underneath.

It is important also to remember that the food you purchase should be top quality and handled properly since food safety begins during shopping.

Buy only quantities of food you can use or store properly to avoid losses due to spoilage. If you have limited cooking facilities, buy smaller cans of food, instant and dried foods, or canned goods that taste good without heating such as canned fish or pork and beans. Use non-fat dry milk.

Do not store contents of opened cans or leftovers without refrigeration. Shop only where sanitation standards are high, where refrigerated cases are kept at the optimum temperature, where freezing equipment maintains frozen foods at 0F or below, where produce looks clean and fresh, and meats on display are properly packaged. Select a grocery store where housekeeping is above reproach. Stay away from damaged merchandise, torn packaging materials, cut cartons, rusty, bulged, and dented cans. Shop carefully; be aware of what to look for when selecting different foods. After shopping, quickly transport foods to the home kitchen to avoid spoilage and loss of quality.

In the kitchen, store foods properly. Proper storage maintains quality and keeps food safe to eat.

Have a safe shopping trip!

Pennsylvania Farm Bureau Commemorates Food Check Out Day

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Food in America is affordable. In fact, between Jan. 1 and Feb. 8, the average American will have earned enough income to pay for his or her family's entire 2002 food supply according to the United States Department of Agriculture statistics.

Members of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau celebrated Food Check Out Day Feb. 8 with deliveries of food and supplies to the five Ronald McDonald Houses located in Pennsylvania.

Brief ceremonies observing the event took place at the Ronald McDonald Houses in Philadelphia, Danville, Hershey, Scranton and Pittsburgh. The Houses provide a a home away from home for the families of seriously ill children receiving medical treatment at area hospitals. The food items and other donations collected by Farm Bureau members will be used to help care for visiting families staying at the Houses.

According to U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics, American consumers spend an average of only 10.6 percent of their disposable income for food. When applied to the calendar, that comes out to 39 days. "Not only is America's food supply the world's safest, but it is also the most affordable," said Guy Donaldson, president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. "It speaks well of our nation's increasing standard of living, which would certainly be reduced without the safe, abundant and affordable domestic food supply produced by America's farmers."

In addition to helping support a worthy cause, Food Check Out Day gives Farm Bureau a chance to highlight how affordable food is in America and how important agriculture is to our national and state economy.

"We hope Americans will come to understand that the high-quality, affordable food they enjoy is a product of our successful food production and distribution system, as well as America's farmers retaining access to effective and affordable crop protection tools," said Donaldson.

The event is part of a nationwide A Food Check Out Day observance by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Dates Set For Composting Workshops, Free Backyard Compost Bins

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension Master Gardeners are again offering composting workshops and backyard composting bins.

In order to make it easier for Schuylkill Countians to attend a backyard composting workshop and receive a bin, Cooperative Extension in Schuylkill County will hold workshops at three locations throughout the county — just in time for spring cleanup.

Consumer Horticulture agent Kathy Wolfe and Schuylkill County Master Gardeners will conduct workshops for Schuylkill County residents on the following dates:

- Thursday, March 21, 9:30 a.m.-11:30 a.m.

Schuylkill County Ag Center — lower level conference room (one mile south of Pottsville on the Gordon Nagle Trail/Route 901).

- Wednesday, April 10, 1 p.m.-3 p.m.

Schuylkill County Ag Center — lower level conference room (one mile south of Pottsville on the Gordon Nagle Trail/Route 901).

The cost to attend each workshop is $5 per household, and preregistration is required. Each household who preregisters for a workshop and attends will receive a composting bin (retail value $79).

To register, call the Penn State Extension office in Schuylkill County at (570) 622-4225.

ANSWER — Anna Bryan, Oxford, N.J., wanted to know how to keep fresh parsley without spoiling in the refrigerator. Thanks to Joyce Stuff, Mercersburg, who writes that parsley will keep fresh for several days by placing stems in a glass of water, covering with a plastic bag, and refrigerating. Parsley can also be frozen in small bunches by wrapping the stems close to the base of the parsley with a twist tie. Cut frozen parsley with a knife and add immediately to recipe. Joyce writes that with Pennsylvania's climate, parsley can be cut fresh from the garden or flower bed from March through November.

Thanks to Catherine Parrish, Ebensburg, who writes that the best way to save fresh parsley is by freezing. Chop it up and put in a couple of freezer bags. When you need some, you can easily break off as much as you need. It can also be used in a salad. Catherine has successfully frozen it for a year.

ANSWER — Thanks to Kristen Gross, Berks County dairy princess, for sending in this recipe for those wanting a warm breakfast on a cold, wintery morning. Kristen writes that on snowy day mornings if school is cancelled or delayed, she and her brother help Dad with barn chores. "When we return to the house, mom always has a fresh hot pan of cream dried beef gravy waiting. It is served over toast made with fresh bread and smeared with plenty of creamy butter. Mom has a hard time keeping enough of the cream dried beef gravy on the table to fill us up."

Cream Chipped Beef Gravy

½ pound chipped beef
2 tablespoons butter
3 heaping tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
3½ cups milk, as desired

Brown beef in butter. Sprinkle flour over beef and mix well. Add milk and heat to boiling point, stirring constantly. Mixture thickens as it heats. Let stand a few minutes before serving. May be served over toast or fried potatoes.

ANSWER — A working mother wanted crock pot recipes and dinner recipes that can be made in a hurry. Here are some from the Beef Council, which recently published brochure, Slow Cooker Beef Meals. Beef Industry Council, Inc., P.O. Box 250, Westmoreland, NY 13490-0250.

Lazy Day Beef & Vegetable Soup

2½ pounds beef for stew, cut into ¾-inch pieces
2 cans (14-14½-ounces each) ready-to-serve beef broth
15-ounce can chickpeas, drained
14½-ounce can diced tomatoes with garlic and onions, undrained
1 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dried Italian seasoning, crushed
½ teaspoon pepper
2 cups frozen mixed vegetables
1 cup uncooked ditalini or other small pasta
Shredded Romano cheese (optional)

Combine beef, broth, chickpeas, tomatoes, water, salt, Italian seasoning, and pepper in 4½-5½-quart slow cooker; mix well. Cover and cook on high 5 hours or low 8 hours. (No stirring necessary during cooking).

Stir in mixed vegetables and pasta. Continue cooking, covered, one hour or until beef and pasta are tender. Stir well before serving. Serve with cheese, if desired.

Makes 6-8 servings (1½-2 cups each).

After-Work Beef Pot Roast Dinner

1 boneless beef chuck shoulder pot roast or bottom round rump roast (3-3½ pounds)
1 envelope (0.7 ounces) Italian dressing mix
2 large onions, each cut into eight wedges
2 cloves garlic, peeled
2 red bell peppers, cut into 1½-inch pieces
½ cup ready-to-serve beef broth
2 zucchini, cut into ¼-inch thick slices
2½ tablespoons cornstarch dissolved in 2 tablespoons water
Salt and pepper

Press dressing mix evenly onto all surfaces of beef pot roast. Place onions and garlic in 4½-5½-quart slow cooker, top with pot roast. Add bell peppers and broth. Cover and cook on high 5 hours or on low 8 hours. Add zucchini. Continue cooking, covered, 30 minutes or until pot roast is fork-tender.

Remove pot roast and vegetables. Strain cookig liquid; skim fat. Combine 2 cups cooking liquid and cornstarch mixture in medium saucepan. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; cook and stir one minute or until thickened.

Carve pot roast into slices; season with salt and pepper, as desired. Serve with vegetables and gravy. Makes 6-8 servings.

Here are some tips for successful slow cooking:

- Follow recipe directions.
- Make sure ingredients fill the slow cookier at least half full so the foods cook properly and the liquid does not cook away.
- Check to see that the slow cooker lid fits completely without tilting or being askew.
- Do not remove the slow cooker lid during cooking unless the recipe directs you to add ingredients or stir. The heat loss caused by removing the lid unnecessarily can result in extra cooking time.

O' Henry Bars

Melt 1 cup butter
Add and mix:
½ cup white Karo syrup
1 cup brown sugar
3 teaspoons vanilla
Stir in 5 cups oatmeal.

Bake in well-greased 9x13-inch glass baking pan at 375 degrees for 20 minutes. (It will not look fully baked). Remove from oven, scatter a bag of chocolate chips on top. Return to oven to melt and spread over top. Cool.

BACON CHEESEBURGER PASTA

8-ounces uncooked tube or spiral pasta
1 pound ground beef
6 bacon strips, diced
1 can condensed tomato soup, undiluted
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
Barbecue sauce and prepared mustard, optional

Cook pasta according to package directions. Meanwhile in skillet, cook beef over medium heat until no longer pink; drain and set aside. In the same skillet, cook bacon until crisp; remove with a slotted spoon to paper towels. Discard drippings. Drain pasta; add to the skillet. Add soup, beef, and bacon; heat through. Sprinkle with cheese, cover, and cook until the cheese is melted. Serve with barbecue sauce and mustard if desired. Yield: 4-6 servings.

Egg Industry Introduces 'Safe At The Plate'

PARK RIDGE, Illinois — Print advertising is an effective method to communicate the egg safety message, believe egg industry representatives, so a new ad to be utilized in the 2002 program is under development.

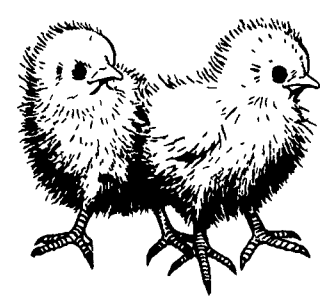
Planned for introduction in the second quarter of the year, the ad will feature the headline "Safe at the Plate." It will include an egg dish depicted on an egg-shaped plate and will list various AEB egg safety training materials available.

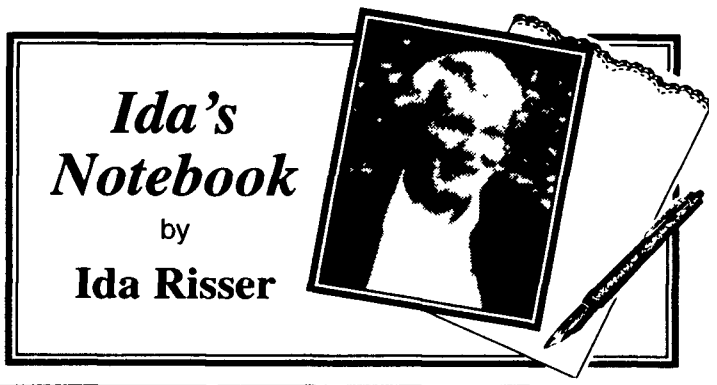
As part of the egg safety educational efforts, seminars are given to a variety of foodservice audiences to increase knowledge of egg care and handling. Culinary students are an important target audience in this program as they will be the future chefs and foodservice professionals.

In addition, plans are underway for the 2002 Foodservice Incredible Edible Egg Recipe Contest. Open to commercial and non-commercial foodservice operators, two categories of egg recipes are being sought for breakfast/brunch and lunch categories.

Winning recipes will be used in future promotional and advertising programs.

Also under development are merchandising materials that will assist foodservice operators in promoting National Egg Month in May. These items will be promoted to the foodservice industry via publications targeted to the restaurant operator. The US Poultry and Egg Association is providing partial funding for the project.





When I was married more than 50 years ago, I often attended public sales. You see, I needed many things when we started housekeeping. Sometimes I'd come home with a rug, an upholstered chain, or a box containing an assortment of small items such as pots and pans.

Often there were dishes in with other gadgets. Some were mismatched while occasionally I'd find a pretty cup and saucer. These dishes accumulated until my cupboards were full. Of course, a few pieces were from family members and have special memories.

One is a small glass container with a glass lid and a glass spoon. An aunt, who lived to be over 100-years-old, told us that it was used on her father's tray when he was ill with typhoid fever. He was one of the lucky ones who recovered.

Another special piece is an unusual tiny red-colored bowl and pitcher set. It is said that it was a gift for a child who traveled here from Philadelphia on a Conestoga wagon. Then there are cups and saucers with names printed on them in very fancy gold letters. My mother said that men who "walked the road" would stop and ask to paint the names for a price.

Other more recent acquisitions are a sugar and cream set, which I purchased in Ireland. It is covered with small shamrocks and has a gold edge. One small pitcher was made by my husband's mother when she lived in a retirement home. She painted flowers on it and then fired it in a craft class. Different pieces bring back different memories.

Now I must get ready to take my husband to physical therapy as he needs to strengthen his leg. He is to exercise to the point where he can walk miles each day.

Wanted: Well-Kept Farms For Dairy of Distinction Merit

Dairy of Distinction

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction Award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15.

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry. Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm

"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences

Roadside judging will take place in May Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings, neat landscaping, ditches, roads, and lanes; and well-maintained fences They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management

Crystal Spring Farm, Mifflintown

Winning farms will be notified in late June. Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards.

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at MOConnor@das.psu edu

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 750 dairy farms. The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications.

How Is Your Farm Scored?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy producers or dairy farming Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition

How The Judging Works

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent of their Dairy of Distinction score card Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

Rules

1 The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Committee (NEDFBP)
2 The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer NEDFBP suggests that a wood post 4"x4"x12' or iron pipe 2"x12' be used Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post In addition, NEDFBP suggests that the sign be mounted in a frame to provide additional stability
3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket, or other frame shall be used to display the sign No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage
4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee
6 No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses
7 The judges' decision will be final
8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31
9 Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30 If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign
10 Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee

Dairy of Distinction
2002 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead.

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award. Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18"x24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm.

Harry Who?

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — About 20 years ago, Harry Bachman, Lancaster, searched for a "talent" to present during a church (Lampeter Church of the Brethren) talent program.

At the library, Harry found instructions for performing three magic tricks.

He practiced the instructions, and performed them during the program. His performance was such a success that Harry and his wife, Donna, are still presenting magic shows at churches, retirement homes, birthday parties and other events.

The tricks aren't supernatural magic. Instead they are tricks performed with such skill that people watching think it looks like magic.

Children listen intently and try to figure out the trick that Harry and his wife are playing.

The children sat quietly, concentrating hard to try to figure out the tricks. In one trick, Harry watered down the news by dumping water on a newspaper and pouring it back into a cup again.

The children gasped, wonder lighting their faces as Harry made a scarf disappear and stuffed a scarf into an egg.

Harry explained one of the tricks by performing it slowly so that the audience could see what Harry called "palming" by distracting the children's attention from the movement of his fingers so that they didn't notice his secret trick.

"You can learn to do this trick if you have the "World Book" encyclopedia," Harry said. "Look up the word magic and you will see pictures that show you how to perform the trick."

Practice, practice, practice — until you can do it so fast that you can trick your friends and family.

If you want to invite Harry to present his magic program, call him at (717) 464-4045 or (717) 295-6161.

In addition to the magic show, children got to taste plenty of food including ice cream sundaes.

How did Harry do that?

Recollections From The Early 1900s

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

HUMMELSTOWN (Dauphin Co.) — In celebration of Valentine's Day, Susan Wert Vogt shares the following excerpt from her book "Pennsylvania's Heartlands, 1860-1960s (Vol.1: Stories of Its Rural People."

The story portrays wedding celebrations and "setting up housekeeping" customs during the early 1900s.

Before John and Ada Boyer of Juniata County passed away, Vogt interviewed them, and later devoted several pages in her book about the Boyers' recollections.

The Boyers are only one of many couples Vogt wrote about in her book, which includes many photographs.

Vogt said that all the people she interviewed were born before the 1900s. Boyer was born in 1890.

For a copy of the 120-page Heartlands book, send $25 to Desktop Editing Company, 1 Scout Lane, Hummelstown, PA 17036.

After courting about a year, Ada Lena Kinzer and I set a date to get married. I asked my neighbor, Al Bookwalter (on the Henry farm) if he would take me to get married at Oakland Mills in his new Model T Ford. He agreed to do so.

Before the ceremony, the Methodist minister met with us upstairs in Ada Lena's home to tell us what to do when he would be officiating later on downstairs. He must have been as excited as I, for he hadn't thought to inquire of me about a marriage certificate or to see if I had followed the proper legal procedure. We were getting ready to go downstairs for the ceremony when I said, "Reverend, don't you want to look these over?"

"I guess I better," he replied.

So we tied the knot on April 12, 1916 and have remained life-long sweethearts.

Immediately after the ceremony, our aunts and uncles thought they would have some fun. They put my wife in one Model T and me in another. We wanted to go in to Mifflin to get on a train to spend our wedding trip visiting some relatives in Altoona. After they had their fun putting us in two separate cars, we got together. As we left for our trip, I gave these last-minute instructions to my dad, "If the ground's fit to plow, go ahead and do it while we're away." It rained the whole week we were in Altoona.

When we got home, my side of the family thought they'd have some fun so they and the neighbors gave us an old-fashioned serenade, complete with sleigh bells and cow bells as noise makers.

When we went to housekeeping, my wife's family gave us a cow, a calf and a complete bedroom suite as wedding presents. It took us a whole day to bring these over from Oakland Mills. We were teased as people saw us passing through with a wagon full of bedroom furniture and a calf, with the cow tied to the rear, walking behind the wagon.

Every time I see "Little House on the Prairie" on television and the women dressed in bonnets, I think about my early married life with my sunbonneted sweetheart, Ada Lena.

My chums, Bill Gilson and Furman McClure, also married their sunbonneted sweethearts, Maggie and Frances Dysinger.

Third Annual Great Chefs' Marathon At Philadelphia's Kitchen

PHILADELPHIA — Have you been hoping to brush up on your culinary skills? Now's your chance. Thirty-five of Philadelphia's top chefs meet at Philadelphia's Kitchen for a seven-hour cooking class and it's all free.

On Feb. 23, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m., 35 of Philadelphia's most renowned chefs join forces at Philadelphia's Kitchen in Reading Terminal Market to present the largest cooking class ever offered in the country. The third annual Great Chefs' Marathon is completely free and open to the public. The event features seven continuous hours with five chefs per hour preparing selections of their choice within a particular food theme.

The Great Chefs' Marathon is coordinated by Chef Joseph Shilling with NBC 10 hosts Steve Levy, Sharon Reed, and Bill Henley. Event coordinators have submitted an application to the Guinness Book of World Records for consideration as the largest cooking class ever held in the country. The 2001 Great Chefs' Marathon attracted an estimated 2,000 people throughout the day.

York Chamber Honors Ag Leadership And Heritage

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — York Area Chamber of Commerce's annual agribusiness awards program looked to the future, honoring two farm families for community leadership, while also saluting three farm families for their efforts in preserving the past.

Donnell and Margaret "Peg" Taylor's family was named the 2001 outstanding farm family of the year. The Taylor's, their sons Allen, Jerry and Tom, and their families, operate TayAcres near Delta. The family operation includes 165 milking cows and 600-plus acres of corn, alfalfa, wheat, barley and mixed hay. Donnell is a 19-year supervisor for Peach Bottom Township, and family members are active in Farm Bureau, Holstein Association, and the Airville Fire Company.

Perrydell Farms, operated by the families of brothers Tom and Greg Perry, is retailing milk to a second-generation of customers who stop regularly at the store on their south York dairy operation. The brothers are actually third-generation producers, since their grandfather Howard began the operation. Following his retirement, his sons George and Roger Perry continued the farm and retail business; Tom and Greg are the sons of George Perry.

The honor was a double one for Perrydell, which was also just named an official York "Factory Tour" site. York's dozen-plus factory tours are popular with both tourists and local residents, and Perrydell served as one of the Chamber's visitation sites on their annual farm-tour day last fall. The Perry families also hosted about 500 school children on educational tours to their dairy farm last spring. Several special farm education events are already planned for this year, including a February "Cabin Fever" farm festival and self-guided tours beginning later in the spring months.

Three long-time family operations were recognized as new Century Farms in York County. Honored for carrying on the tradition of family farms for over 100-hundred years was the Trimmer family's Maple Ridge Farm, a family partnership beef cattle operation, owned by the family since May 25, 1872.

Perrydell Dairy Farm received the York Chamber of Commerce's annual outstanding ag industry award. Accepting the honor and the farm's official York area factory tour banner from program emcee Tom Brandt, right, are Donna and Tom Perry.

Robert and Margaret Shaub's 113-acre Shrewsbury Township farm, operated by the couple and their children Kevin and Megan, includes grain crops and a retail garden-market center. The Shaub family dates its ownership to Dec. 19, 1892. A turn-of-the-century purchase, on April 2, 1900, brought a 60-acre farm north of York into the family farm now operated by Charles and June Sunday. The Sunday's current 105-acres are included in their grain crops and beef production business.

Raechel Kilgore, Airville, was recognized for her first-place win in individual 4-H dairy judging at the 2001 national dairy judging contest held during World Dairy Expo, Madison, Wis., in October 2001. Raechel, the daughter of Doug and Pam Kilgore, is a long-time York 4-H dairy club member.

Farm visitation day hosts honored included Gentry Farms and Hopewell Pheasantry, William and Gail Rinas, Earl and Dawn Burg's Hacienda LaFlamente' Horse Farm, the historic Wallace-Cross Mill, Dick and Audrey Naylor's Wine Cellars, and John Shelley's Garden Center and Nursery.

The Chamber's agriculture-business exchange program included one exchange program during 2001. Taking part were Kent Bovard and Greg Hinderliter, representing South Branch Farms beef operation, who exchanged work days with Steve Miller of Peoples Bank, a Codorus Valley Company.

David Carver, whose economic development leadership in York has been instrumental in spearheading efforts to establish an ethanol-production plant in York County, was cited for outstanding service to the York County ag community. Ethanol production was the topic of keynote speaker John Urbanchuk, executive vice-president of A.U.S. Consultants, Moorestown, N.J., a firm working closely with the ethanol project.

Urbanchuk said that while ethanol can be produced from a variety of bio-mass feedstuffs, 92 percent of the ethanol currently being produced in the U.S. is sourced from corn.

"Ethanol production is the third-largest user of corn in our country, with livestock feeding the largest user and exporting the second largest," said Urbanchuk.

Pennsylvania has ready access to consumer markets and proximity to production of appropriate biomass resources, located within 100 miles of a normal yearly grain production of 200 million bushels of corn and 45 million bushels of soybeans. Other critical inputs for a successful ethanol industry include access to transportation, reasonably priced electricity and natural gas, and a ready supply of water.

Shippensburg Area School District Receives National Award

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Shippensburg Area School District, Shippensburg, was selected to receive the NAAE Post Secondary All-Star Team Award as one of the outstanding post secondary education programs in the nation.

The award was presented at a special recognition program, Dec. 13, at the National Association of Agricultural Educators, (NAAE) annual conference in New Orleans, La.

Located in the heart of the scenic Cumberland Valley, Shippensburg provides a balance of agriculture, industry, and education. The Shippensburg Young Adult Farmer Program dates back to the early 1920s with evening classes and on-farm instruction, and is now the second largest chapter in the state.

Gerald J. Reichard, is a full-time adult farmer education coordinator for the Shippensburg School District. He believes that family oriented values and good planning are key to maintaining a successful program targeted to farm families. Even in today's busy climate, Reichard keeps members actively involved in both the planning and implementing of relevant education programs and events.

In addition to facilitating cutting edge educational programming for farmers, the Shippensburg Young Adult Farmer Program has been a partner and supporter of the Shippensburg Farm City Week Program since its first Farm-City Banquet on Nov. 25, 1958.

Members are active in the Shippensburg Community Fair, Shippensburg Corn Festival, and the Shippensburg Chamber of Commerce Activities.

The Shippensburg Young Adult Farmer Chapter also works with the Franklin County Farm Bureau in hosting an educational program for over 1600 county fourth grade students as well as an open house for the community on local farms. "The Franklin Fall Farm Fun Fest" is an annual event that provides a natural setting for community agriculture awareness and educational activities.

The NAAE Postsecondary All-Star Team Award recognizes the nation's most successful postsecondary agriculture programs. It highlights how local programs and instructors incorporate the basics — English, mathematics and sciences — into their courses, and how they use new technology to teach.

NAAE is the professional association for agriculture educators. The mission of NAAE is "professionals providing agricultural education for the global community through visionary leadership, advocacy, and service." The NAAE is located at the Agricultural Education National Headquarters in Alexandria, Va., near the nation's capital.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — A reader is looking for the words to the song that includes these lines: "How do you talk to a little baby goat? You can't say hello like a man. You have to say baa to a little baby goat. That's all he'll understand.

QUESTION — Kenneth Wertz, White Hall, Md., is trying to obtain information for StarLine barn stanchions. The stanchions used in his barn were probably put in during the 1930-1940s. He thinks they may have been made in Harford County, Maryland, but isn't sure. Any help would be appreciated.

QUESTION — Holly Eshbach, Dover, wants to know where to purchase "baby doll sheep," which are miniature sheep that grow between 18-24-inches in height. She also wants information on the breed and diet and care that is required.

QUESTION — Glen would like to know where to find mower parts for a Yanmar diesel YM146. Call (717) 626-5700.

QUESTION — John Kotulich, Flemington, N.J., wants to know where to buy a glass jar for a hand butter churn. The top opening with outside thread diameter is about 5⅝-inches and is 11- to 12-inches deep for a 2 or a 2½ gallon round or square size. Call (908) 782-5774.

QUESTION — A reader (717) 898-7085 needs a source for plastic dibbles used for planting small seedlings.

QUESTION — Tim O'Rourke, York Co., needs the formula that was used for the mortar of more than a century-old bank barn. The mortar has a reddish tint that suggests clay silt soil from around the barn was used. Any information would be appreciated.

QUESTION — Thomas Burrell, Glen Gardner, N.J., wants the name and address of someone in the Lancaster area who makes and sells life-size cows and calves for display in barnyards, lawns, and other places. He has seen some of the cows in various breeds that he believes may have been made from fiberglass material.

QUESTION — John W. Lowery Jr., 7 Old Sharptown Rd., Auburn, NJ 08085, was born and raised in Rowes Run, Fayette County. Lowery is researching coal mines in that area and is looking for pictures of the following coal mines: Colonial #1 Smock, Colonial #2 Royal also known as Chestnut Ridge, Colonial #3 Rowes Run, and Colonial #4 Grindstone.

QUESTION — Frank Rice, Blain, wants to know how the term "pork bellies" came in to use for reporting on agricultural commodities.

QUESTION — Violet Cassner, Newburg, wants the correct address and fax number to receive a catalog from the Fox Hollow Seed Company.

QUESTION — Bob Fleckstein, Woodstown, N.J., has an old string of Christmas lights. He wants to know where he can buy small clear replacement bulbs for it. The bulbs are one-inch long and have threads on the end. No marking is on them.

QUESTION — Kathryn Robson, Lebanon, has lost part of old Universal grinder, one for family use, not a large grinder. She wants to know of some place that deals in Universal items or parts.

QUESTION — Mrs. Ben King, 154 Locust St., Leola, PA 17540, wants a buy a used 2-4-gallon glass fish bowl.

QUESTION — Ken would like to know where to find an Ijima Copper hen pheasant. Call (607) 692-3198.

QUESTION — Naomi Lapp, 1202 Holtwood Rd., Holtwood, PA 17527, wants information or patterns for Raggedy Ann dolls.

QUESTION — Dwayne Shirk, 212 Hammond RD, Shippensburg, PA 17257-9763 needs instructions for the game Free Parking made by Parker Brothers.

QUESTION — M.K. from Pottsville, wants to know where to get the address for actor Sean Connery.

QUESTION — Mrs. Paul Brubaker, Mt. Joy, recalls that someone had wanted to know how to get rid of lady bugs in the house. An answer was printed but she didn't clip it out and now needs the information. Did anyone clip out the information to be reprinted?

QUESTION — Henry K. King, 1061 Osceola Rd., Drumore, PA 17518 wants to buy used scooters and two books, "The Mystifying Twins" by Joan Price Reeve.

QUESTION — Rebecca Esch, 683 Conowingo Rd., Quarryville, PA 17566 is interested in old greeting cards from 1930-1980.

QUESTION — Harold Stoudt, Hamburg, is looking for a lightweight, 3-point, pitmanless sickle bar mower preferably with a six-foot cut. Does such an item exist and where could he find one at an affordable price? He needs to use it only occasionally for trimming fence rows and ditches.

QUESTION — Josephine Long, Sidman, wants to know where to get Westminster pot handles and knobs fixed or buy replacements to fix herself. She purchased the stainless steel pots, made in the U.S, about 1960.

QUESTION — Ruth Ann Zeiset wants to know what to do to keep potatoes from sprouting in the cellar.

QUESTION Raymond Shirk needs supplies for a 3M Tartan copier, which had been given to him. He is unable to locate supplies and asks if it is an obsolete model. The instruction book says to place a pink paper (which is light sensitive) on top of the original to be copied. Where can the pink paper be found?

QUESTION — David Sempler, Elkton, Md., wants written information on scenting in regards to hunting. He writes that some days his beagles run as if they are tied to the rabbit and work very hard to keep it going. Sempler has heard that the ground breathes in and out and sometimes it does not. He knows that barometric pressure changes affect scenting conditions and that extremely dry weather produces bad scenting conditions. Sempler wants factual information on the relationship between high and low pressures, dry and wet ground, and high and low humidity.

QUESTION — Dave Ruble, West Chester, is looking for cylinder records (Columbia, Edison, Indestructible, and others) and phonograph-related items. He also wants old trains and toys. Call (610) 793-4249.

QUESTION — Does anyone know how to dehull Brazil nuts so they remain intact. Clarence Sheaffer writes that he tried soaking some in warm water. The hulls softened; however, the meat also softened and was stained, which may not harm it.

QUESTION — Ben Kinsinger, 686 Kensinger Rd., Meyersdale, wants to know where to find two old gas engines in any condition for an old Maytag washing machine motor that used a glass jar turned upside down for the gas. He also wants a very small ½ horsepower New Holland gas engine made in New Holland.

QUESTION — Louise Hannum, Wagontown, wants to know if there is any interest in a complete 1968 Franklin Mint Antique Car Coin Collection Series I. It includes 25 bronze coins dated from 1901-1925 with descriptive booklet.

QUESTION — M.P., Kintnersville, wants to know where an umbrella with broken metal pieces can be fixed.

QUESTION — A reader has a problem with their rabbits not pulling fur to prepare a nest to have their young. Anyone know what causes this "unmotherly" behavior?

QUESTION — A reader is looking for the words to "Black Mountain Light," a ballad about a slave owner who sees a strange light on the mountain while looking for a slave.

QUESTION — Carl Detwiler, Zionsville, wants to know if any owner of a 3226 QT Bush Hog front end loader has trouble with the mounting arms breaking at the welds.

QUESTION — Leroy Serventi, Croydon, would like to know of any vegetable gardening clubs or groups in Bucks County, Pa., or in Burlington County, N.J.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted to know where to buy rug braiding material, here is a source recommended by Brenda Hockenberry, Shippensburg: Franklin Clothing, 208 Purgan Ave., Shippensburg. Phone (717) 532-4146. The place provides factory cuttings. Ask for Mark Comeau.

Also thanks to a reader who writes that the public sale held for Leah Ebersol an Sat. Feb 23 at 9 a.m. in Monterey (1.3 miles south of Leola on Rt. 772, will include lots of material for rugs. Leah brought the rug making material by the pound. Most of it is wool but some is knit material. Auction is advertised in this paper.

ANSWER — For the reader who wanted a pattern to sew men's work jeans that are similar to the Wrangler brand, Brenda Hockenberry, Shippensburg, suggests she takes apart an old pair of jeans and use it for the pattern. Brenda has done this several times when she couldn't locate a pattern, and it works well, she said.

QUESTION — E. Martin, 1190 Oaklyn Dr., Narvon, has a marble game called Avalanche by Parker Brothers but no directions. Can anyone help her?

ANSWER — Howard Pensack, Belvidere, N.J., wanted a source for heirloom pole lima seed known as Dr. John Martin. Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, recomends checking the following sources that carry heirloom seeds: Vermont Bean Seed Co., Computer Operation Center, Vaucluse, SC 29850-0150, and Park Seed, 1 Parkton Ave., Greenwood, SC 29647-0001. Web site is www.parkseed.com or phone (800) 845-3369.

ANSWER — A Shippensburg reader wanted instructions (spraying, trimming, and grafting) on raising fruit trees, and asked if it is possible to harvest good fruit from trees started from peach stones? Thanks to Lowell Pepple, Orrtanna, for writing that if you plant seeds, you will get a natural tree that probably will not be a good tree. You should either bud or graft the variety into the tree you want. Budding, grafting, spraying, and pruning information is available from Pa. State Fruit Research Labortory, Biglersville. Fruit trees can be purchased from Boyers Nursery between Cashtown and Arendtsville or from Adams County Nursery, Aspers.

ANSWER — Marian Lefever, Quarryville, wanted to know where to find a parts and cutting blade for an electric Oster food grinder model 996. Thanks to E. Martin, for suggesting that Sunbeam appliance services can help: Allentown, 1126 Linden St. 18102; Mechanicsburg, 6021 Carlisle Pike, 17055; and Pittsburgh, 1629 Penn Ave., 15222.

ANSWER — Eleanor Dial, Rt. 3, Box 87D, Bruceton Mills, W.V., is looking for a ceramic or stuffed ground hog or anything ground hog related. Prefers a source to mail order as she would not want to travel far.

ANSWER — Kathryn Wistuk, Bangor, wrote that during World War II, she had rheumatic fever. A neighbor lady from England told her mother about a remedy called dog oil to massage on the affected-fected leg. Her mother used it and the massage therapy worked. Kathryn would like more information about it. She thinks it may be good to alleviate arthritis although it smells really bad. Thanks to a reader for writing that the dog oil is also called bitterroot, dogbane or wandering milkweed. It has been used to treat typhoid and other fevers, rheumatism, and diseases of the joints and mucous membrane. Kathryn said the remedy is derived from the root of a cathartic herb. Editor's Note: This paper does not endorse the use of this product.

Vast Collection Paints Maritime History

This rare 19th century figural mast head depicts a male rather than the customary female likeness.

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

KIMBERTON (Chester Co.) — Passion for the sea has permeated five generations of the Hudson family. And with that affection, the family has accumulated what is thought to be the most vast collection of maritime-related treasures.

One of the most family's most prolific collectors is Samuel R. Hudson. Born in the early years of the 20th century, Hudson has been instrumental for the development of ports along the Delaware River. Beginning as a dock builder and rising to field superintendent and project manager, Hudson formed his own company, S.T. Hudson Engineers Inc., which designed the bridges and the shipyards.

Hudson commissioned many prestigious painters to produce one of a kind paintings of the sea and various seafaring ships. For many years, his art collection has been on display at the Harbour League Club, Camden, N.J.

The collection also includes hundreds of original photos showing a pictorial history of Philadelphia and other waterfront cities in New Jersey and Delaware. He has amassed a collection or rare books and artifacts connected to ships and water travel. Included is a 19th century figural mast head depicting a mariner with a hat and skirting. The mast head is unusual in that it portrays a man rather than a woman.

Although no longer considered politically correct, Hudson said that the sea is always referred to as a woman, because the water is so changeable, ranging from calmness to unpredictable fury.

Hudson also has some brass 4-feet high binnacles (steering station for boat that gives direction using compass and bells), a diver's helmet, ships wheels, one of the first full divers body suit, nautical instruments, and much more.

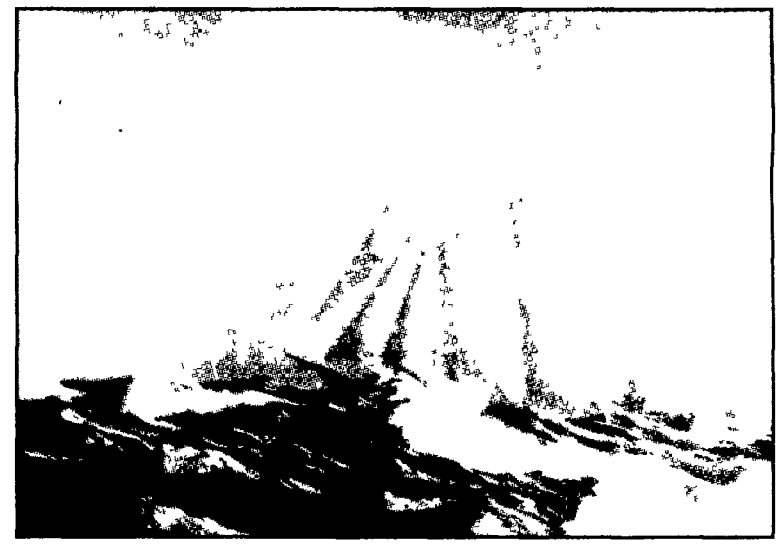
Some items that are not of the sea but affiliated with those who share a respect for the sea such as his collection of tiffany-style domes and chandeliers from the famed Zaberers Restaurant located at the port of Wildwood, N.J.

Hudson is now in his late 80s and plans to sell his collection of art and all maritime-related artifacts. Included are railroad stock certificates, memorabilia, and rare historical treasures.

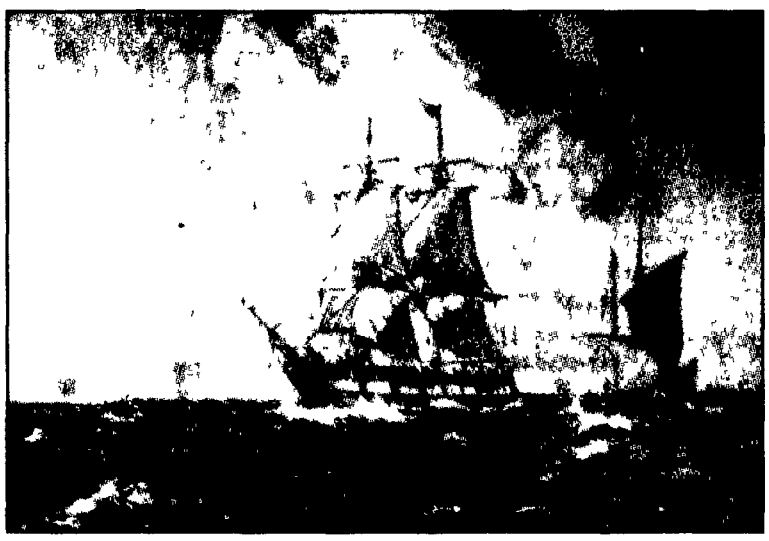
The auction is scheduled for March 16-17, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Kimberton Fairgrounds, Kimberton. For a catalog and preview dates, call Ron Rhoads at (610) 385-4818 or check out the Web Site: www.echant.com.

Samuel T. Hudson, who with his family, was instrumental in the development of all the ports associated with the Delaware River, has amassed what is considered the largest maritime collection of antiques and artifacts, which tells an interesting story.

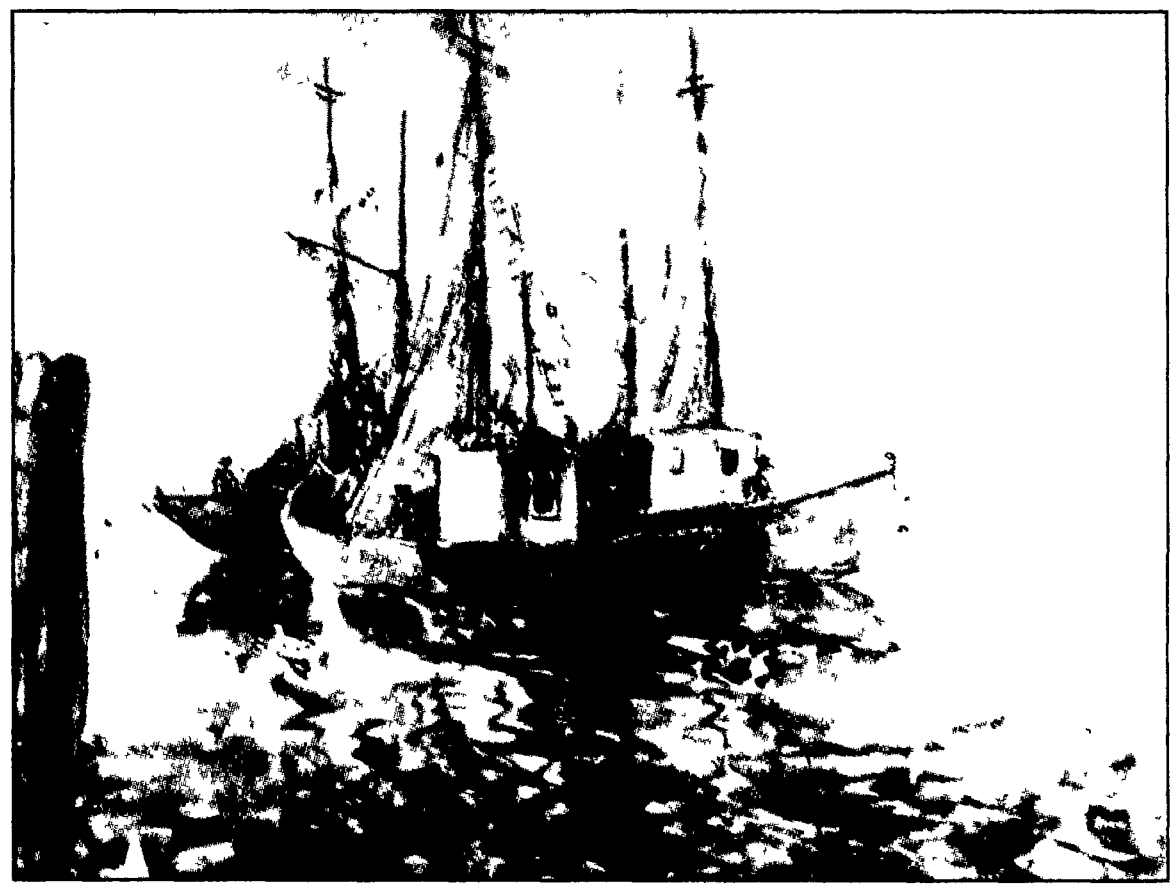
Two Fishing Vessels by B.Della Valle.



Bluenose Running by M.A.K. Feldsberg measures 24x34-inches.



The maritime art collection includes commissioned one-of-a-kind paintings and famous originals. Experts are trying to determine whether this The First Salute to the Stars and Strips was painted by Gorden Grant or N.C. Wyeth.



Three Fishing Boats by Walter Emerson Baum.

Shoreline Before the Storm painted in 1896 by Franklin D. Briscoe.

Many Factors Determine American Highboy Prices

When American highboys come to auction, prices depend on who made it, who owned it, and the sophistication of the workmanship.

Whether or not it is called "highboy," "tall chest," or "chest-on-chest," the furniture piece is considered one of the finest examples of 18th and early 19th century American cabinetry.

In England, it is known as the "tallboy." However, the "highboy" is mounted on slim, cabriole legs; the chest-on-chest rests on short, usually ogee bracket feet. Regardless of the name it is one of the most pricey pieces of early American furniture. A superb example attributed to a quality, "high style" cabinet maker, with a long list of important or one family owners (provenance) can sell for more than $100,000.

Highboys and chest-on-chests became the most important storage pieces in the Colonies. Early styles imported from England, were copied by American cabinetmakers.

"High style" was done in major cities such as Philadelphia. It was notable for fine carving and the way the graining of the woods were used. Imported mahogany and walnut were the preferred woods.

When the carving was simplified but done in the high style in cherry or maple woods, the piece can be identified as the work of a rural cabinetmaker who trained in the city. When these pieces can be attributed to a specific maker or region, auction prices can be from $7,000 to $18,000.

The "country" highboy, plainest of all the examples, was more functional than decorative. The woods most often used were pine, maple or local species. In good condition the country highboy sells at auctions for as little as $3,000 to as much as $10,000. The country highboys are currently popular with collectors of folk art and country Americana.

From 1690 to 1720 the William and Mary flat top was fashionable.

Many types of feet were used from pad to Spanish foot. After 1720 to 1760 the Queen Anne style, with cabriole legs was in vogue. In 1730 the scroll-top came into use. A carved ornament such as an urn or a flame was placed between the outwardly curved scrolls.

Other times they were also at the corners. With the introduction of Chippendale style,

Antique Detective

c.1755-1790, elaborate carvings in Rococo style, including shells and scrolls were popular. Most prized in all types are those with bonnet-tops. The more quality ornamentation the more valuable the piece.

By the early 19th century the highboy was out of fashion in the cities and replaced by other types of chests.

CLUES: Fakes, reproductions, married pieces and bad restorations have been around since the late 19th century...and continue. While reproductions made during the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876 are being seriously collected, the risk for beginning collectors is paying too much, thinking they are period pieces. The carving may be wonderful, but the construction and finishing offer clues.

Since these pieces were made to stand against the wall, back in the 18th century, backs were left rough and unfinished. The reproductions have been nicely finished. Period pieces will have planing marks and a rough underside to the drawers. Feel underneath the piece. It should be rough.

Other clues will be dovetails, shrinkage, and hardware. If the piece is a recent reproduction, the inside of the drawers will smell new. As far as the Centennial pieces are concerned the carving will not be as sharply defined as on the 18th century pieces. Best advice is to visit museums. Study pieces at quality antique shows, when the dealer offers provenance. There's nothing like training your eyes and knowing what to look for.

Conservation Group Seeks Expanded Use Of Conservation Buffers On Agricultural Land

ANKENY, Iowa — A leading conservation organization has called on policymakers, conservationists, and the nation's farmers and ranchers to make the most of the opportunity that exists for use of grass and tree buffers to address conservation problems on agricultural land.

The Soil and Water Conservation Society (SWCS), in a report based on a National Conservation Buffer Workshop which took place in June 2001, outlines a series of research, policy reform, and communication needs to advance the use of buffers for the benefit of agricultural producers, taxpayers, and the environment.

"Right now, there is a window of opportunity to help producers and the environment," said Craig Cox, executive vice-president of SWCS. "We have an effective and under-used technology — conservation buffers — and a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) program — the continuous Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) sign-up — that producers attractive financial incentives to use buffers."

"Agricultural and conservation interests simply can't afford to miss this opportunity," Cox added. "It not only will help farmers and ranchers put conservation on the ground voluntarily, but also help meet the goals of the Clean Water Act, Safe Drinking Water Act, and similar laws through those voluntary measures."

The buffer workshop was organized by SWCS in cooperation with USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service involved researchers, government program managers, organizational leaders, and producers.

Participants were divided into three work groups and asked to identify the most pressing buffer research needs, policy reforms regarding the continuous CRP sign-up, and ways to communicate more effectively with farmers and ranchers.

The resulting agendas for action, Cox said, should help USDA's National Conservation Buffer Initiative achieve its goal of helping landowners install up to two million miles of conservation buffers. Thus far, according to Cox, farmers and ranchers have installed about 1.2 million miles of buffers, which is 60 percent of the USDA goal.

Among the more than 50 action items in the report are the following:

- Determine how different plant communities can be used in buffers to achieve specific conservation objectives, such as water quality improvement or fish and wildlife habitat enhancement.
- Evaluate how wide buffers must be to achieve certain nonpoint-source water pollution control goals.
- Explore the potential for producing marketable agricultural products in buffers.
- Develop combinations of buffers and related practices that can be used to reduce pollution in agricultural tile-drain systems.
- Allow haying or grazing of buffers enrolled in the continuous CRP sign-up for maintenance purposes.
- Make the continuous CRP sign-up a permanent farm bill program and provide an acreage holdback for buffers under the CRP acreage cap.
- Make all agricultural land, not just certain cropland and marginal pasture land, eligible for enrollment as buffers in the continuous CRP sign-up.
- Extend all financial incentives in the continuous CRP sign-up to all buffer practices eligible for enrollment.
- Develop more extensive partnerships with corporations, nonprofit organizations, and other partners to promote the use of buffers.
- Assemble a promotional toolkit on buffers for use by USDA personnel and others.
- Initiate more extensive buffer training on the design, installation, and maintenance of buffers for USDA employees and partners in the private sector.

A copy of the SWCS report, "Realizing the Promise of Conservation Buffer Technology," is available on the organization's webpage at www.swcs.org. Copies also can be requested, via e-mail, at pubs@swcs.org or by calling (515) 289-2331, x10.

Ohio Soybean Yields Better Than Expected

COLUMBUS, Ohio - Despite variable growing conditions across the state, this season's soybean crop produced better-than-expected yields.

Ohio State University agronomist Jim Beuerlein said neither drought conditions in the northeast region nor disease problems in the western half of the state prevented growers from producing a successful crop. Though no official yield numbers have been released, Beuerlein believes the state managed to maintain the U.S. Department of Agriculture's prediction of 42 bushels per acre.

"Overall the crop was in good shape. Most of the state had good yields and some places even saw record numbers," said Beuerlein. "My guess is that most folks who had good weather saw some of the best yields they've ever produced and those folks who experienced poor weather had some of the worst yields they've experienced."

Beuerlein said the north central and northeast regions of the state saw below-average yields due to drought conditions experienced late in the growing season. "Areas like the south saw 10-20 percent above normal precipitation, but the area up north saw up to seven inches below normal of rain during the months of July, August and September, when the fields needed it the most," he said.

Disease problems in the western half of the state also affected yields, but the severity of the diseases depended on soybean variety, soil type and planting date.

"There has been more variation in the state than normal, even within counties. A farmer could have seen a 25-30 percent difference in yield between two fields just depending on planting date," said Beuerlein. "But we are pleased with the crop despite those variations."

Certified Angus Beef LLC Business Briefs

Feedlot Managers Train

Approximately 30 feedlot managers from around the country recently participated in a "Commitment to Quality" training program in North Platte, Neb.

The semiannual seminar was conducted by Certified Angus Beef LLC's (CAB) supply development team. Participants strengthened their ability to match quality beef production with customer satisfaction.

They also learned a three-pronged approach to beef quality assurance — safe product use, management for higher quality beef products and detailed system management.

Ice Carver

A Park City, Utah, Albertson's store was filled with eager consumers on Jan. 19 — all trying to catch a glimpse of world-famous ice carver, Chuck Cooper. He hosted a three-hour ice carving demonstration at the store as part of an international carving tour sponsored by Certified Angus Beef LLC (CAB).

The company is the official branded beef supplier to the 2002 Olympic Winter Games. In addition to carving festivities, the crowd enjoyed samples of CAB top sirloin. The tour was designed to help folks "catch the spirit" of the Winter Games and promote the CAB brand's official suppliership.

P.M. Global Foods, LLC Receives Award

P.M. Global Foods, located in the San Francisco area (Foster City, Calif.), was recently awarded the Export Marketer of the Year award by CAB. The award was based on the company's proactive promotion of the Certified Angus Beef brand in Asian markets.

P.M. Global also hosted a seminar in Korea to promote the brand among Korean buyers before market liberalization. And one of P.M. Global's largest Hong Kong restaurant customers recently visited CAB headquarters in Wooster, Ohio.

Intercity Packers

Intercity Packers of Vancouver, B.C., is committed to the Certified Angus Beef (CAB) brand, thanks in large part to Danny Ransom, the company's CAB specialist.

Ransom was awarded "Specialist of the Year" honors at CAB 2002 Specialist Seminar, held in Salt Lake City on Jan. 16. Ransom was selected from among 140 CAB specialists at CAB's U.S. and international food service distribution companies. His enthusiasm for the brand helped Intercity Packers double their CAB sales over 2000.

The company currently services 67 CAB-licensed restaurants in British Columbia and 26 in Alberta.

Top Five

Out of more than 40 international destinations, more CAB brand products are exported to Japan than any other international location. Japan commands 66 percent of the market share. Rounding out the top five are Canada with 22 percent; Mexico, four percent; and South Korea and Bahamas, each with one percent.

NAMA Awards

Certified Angus Beef LLC (CAB), headquartered in Wooster, Ohio, submitted three entries in this year's Best of National Agri-Marketing Association (NAMA) competition. In the Ohio competition, the company was recognized with three first-place awards and best of show honors.

First place honors were awarded in the following categories: PR Events — "Minor League Baseball Sponsorship;" Brochures/ Catalogs — "Waitstaff Training Kit;" and Unique Print Ad — "Retail Olympic Ad Kit."

Best of show honors were awarded for the "Waitstaf Training Kit."

Today Show Debut

Internationally acclaimed ice carver Chuck Cooper took the CAB brand to NBC's Today Show on Feb. 4. Cooper is currently traveling the country on a North American carving tour sponsored by CAB. Cooper has hosted carving demonstrations in Cleveland; Denver; Salt Lake City; Boise, Idaho; Charlotte N.C.; Vancouver, B.C.; and Philadelphia. Cooper's creations pass on the spirit of the Winter Games while promoting the CAB brand.

QVC Sells CAB Southwest-Style Brisket

QVC has teamed with Levonian Brothers to bring its customers the CAB Southwest-style brisket. The brisket is slow-roasted for seven hours and seasoned with authentic herbs and seasonings from San Antonio.

Salt Lake

Spectators, media and champion athletes from around the world will visit Salt Lake during the 2002 Olympic Winter Games, Feb. 8-24. CAB is the official branded beef supplier to the 2002 Olympic Winter Games and a supplier to the U.S. Olympic Team through 2004.

More than 400,000 pounds of CAB product-one million servings-will be consumed during the Games. Brand items to be supplied at Olympic venues include: CAB heat-and-serve pot roast, frankfurters, barbecue beef, three types of deli meats and Wild West Chili.

Holstein Association Sets Tours

ALTOONA (Blair Co.) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association Convention will feature two different tours for people who arrive at the convention on Thursday, Feb. 28.

The first tour will feature visits to three historic locations in Altoona:

• The Railroader's Museum. Find out what it was like in Altoona at the height of industrial America when 17,000 people worked for the same company. Your life was set to railroad time — sacrifice and hard work were the standard.

• Baker Mansion. Discover how life has changed since ironmaster Elias Baker built his home in 1849. In the mid-19th century, iron-making was the premier industry in central Pennsylvania. The region's iron was considered the best in the nation.• Antique Depot. Experience one of Central Pennsylvania's largest, most exciting antique gallery and indoor/ outdoor flea market. The Antique Depot offers more than 180 high-quality antique dealers. Spend the day looking at jewelry, glassware, furniture, primitives, and collectibles, all under one roof.

The second tour will visit two dairy farms and Hoss's Fresh Express:

• Pleasant View Farms, the Rodney Metzler Family. Pleasant View Farms, Inc. is a fifth generation family owned farm. It is owned and managed by Rodney and Gretchen, along with Troy and his wife Jennifer, Marshall and his wife Holly, and their children. In 1998, a new facility was built where 1,125 cows are milked three times a day in a Surge double-25 parallel parlor. At a second farm, 250 cows are milked. Total cow numbers including dry cows is approximately 1,500 head. The farm ships about 82,000 pounds of milk daily from the main farm and 13,000 pounds from the second farm.

• Hoss's Fresh Express. Hoss's began the central processing of their products six years ago. The plant is operated under USDA guidelines. They supply fresh products to the 41 Hoss's restaurants. In 2001, they processed approximately 3 million pounds of products ranging from crab cakes, barbecued ribs, and Hoss's famous fresh steaks. The tour group will see how Hoss's handles and processes their meat products for their successful restaurant chain.

• Burket Falls Farms. This family run farm is owned and operated by David Burket Sr., David Burket Jr. who is in charge of the cropping operation, and John Burket, who oversees the milking herd. Burket Falls has a total of 260 registered Holsteins with a rolling herd average of 23,030 pounds milk 4.0 percent 951 fat 3.1 percent 705 protein. They farm 500 acres of corn and alfalfa, and maintain quite of bit of pasture ground.

David and Seana Brown, Aldie, Va., consigned the grand champion bull at the 2002 National Western Stock Show Angus Bull Sale Show, Jan. 17 in Denver, Colo. BCC Rimrock K13, a January 2001 son of D H D Traveler 6807, first won winter bull calf champion. A group that includes Brookside Angus, Williston, N.D.; ErReR Hill Farms, Friedens, Pa.; Kahn Cattle Company LLC, Rydal, Ga.; Wheatland Farms, Waterford, Va.; and Stoney Point Angus, Murray Bridge, Australia, purchased two-thirds interest in the bull.

Ciscos Named Beef Promoters Of The Year

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Al and Emmagene Cisco of Lindley, N.Y. were recognized as the "Beef Promoters of the Year" by the New York Beef Producer's Association (NYBPA) and New York Beef Industry Council (NYBIC). Each year at the NYBPA annual meeting, members of the organization recognize an individual or couple who go above and beyond the call of duty to spread the word about beef.

"Al and Emmagene were an obvious choice," says Don Gray, a beef producer and chairman of the NYBIC. "They support the beef industry throughout the state — from Empire Farm Days in Seneca Falls to the Farm Show and State Fair in Syracuse. It's people like them who make this business so great."

The Ciscos have been raising beef cattle for over 30 years and have continually promoted beef and the beef industry. In 2001 Al planned a very successful N.Y. and Pennsylvania beef growers' family picnic.

Working with Cooperative Extension he helped plan a beef cattle management workshop. Through his interactions with the NYBPA, Cooperative Extension and local legislators, Al was instrumental in obtaining funding to purchase cattle scales, that are now available for use to all cattle producers in Steuben County. Currently Al is a member of the NYBPA Council, chairman of the NYBPA Southern Tier Region and was recently elected treasurer of the NYBIC.

Emmagene, like Al, has also been extremely active in beef promotions. She is the past president and parliamentarian of the New York Cattle Women, a group she has held leadership roles in for many years. She also sits on American National Cattle Women Committees and helped organize Region I meetings conducted in New York State.

Emmagene has helped and organized events such as Farm-City Days, Local Ag Fairs, Taste of Home Cooking Schools, Youth Programs, and the Queens County Fair.

2002 Red Angus EPDs Available

DENTON, Texas — The 2002 Spring Red Angus EPDs are now available. The Red Angus Association of America (RAAA) publishes EPDs for female fertility, carcass and growth traits, which include genetic predictions for heifer pregnancy, stayability, marbling, ribeye area, back fat, birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight, milk and total maternal.

The RAAA publishes a Heifer Pregnancy EPD, which predicts the probability differences in the expected pregnancy rate of a bull's daughters developed and exposed to calve as a two-year old, and a Stayability EPD, which predicts the probability differences that a sire's daughters, once in production, will raise a calf after reaching six years of age.

This spring, the RAAA will also publish a prototype Calving Ease Direct EPD (calving ease of a sire's offspring) and Calving Ease Total Maternal EPDs (predicts the maternal component of a sire's daughters' calving ease).

Red Angus carcass EPDs are available on over 320,000 head. This program has incorporated both traditional carcass data and real time ultrasound into the calculation of the genetic predictions for carcass merit.

The Red Angus Association's goal is to have the best objectively described cattle in the Industry. Realizing that quality genetic predictions are the direct function of quality data, in 1995 Red Angus implemented Total Herd Reporting (THR). THR requires that the production and performance of all active animals in the Red Angus herd book be accounted for annually. The implementation of this program results in Red Angus having the most unbiased and reliable growth EPDs in the industry.

The new EPDs are from the Spring 2002 Red Angus National Cattle Evaluation conducted at Colorado State University. The EPDs are available on the web at www.redangus.org. For a free Sire Summary and Membership Directory, please contact the Red Angus Association at (940) 387-3502 or mailto: info@redangus1.org.

Farming A Lifetime Pursuit For No-Till Corn Class Winner

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co) — To James Hershey, farming has been a lifelong pursuit — and has provided lifelong learning opportunities

Hershey is the winner of the no-till nonirrigated division of 2000's state shelled grain class with 216 4 bushels per acre and a plant population of 29 272 per acre using Pioneer 33A14

A four-year entrant in both corn and soybean divisions in both the state and national contests he actually has several wins behind his name A soybean yield of 80 bushels per acre netted him top honors in the soybean contest two years ago

Additionally he was third in the state in 1997 for the corn contest and last year third in the state for the national corn contest He plans to continue to enter future competitions

Farming has always been the career choice for Hershey and his wife Shirley Hershey grew up in New Holland and farmed on his parents operation for a year before he moved to the Elizabethtown farm where Shirley grew up in 1977 Her father Raymond Miller continues to help out with the fieldwork

They own 250 acres and farm a total of 350 acres The corn wheat soybeans and barley the Hershevs grow are all sold

The couple also owns an

Let Shelled Corn Heat Your Home, Furnace Maker Says

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

LOCK HAVEN (Clinton Co) — While the possibility of ethanol production from local corn is being studied by some Pennsylvania ag and economic development leaders, one manufacturer here is making furnaces that convert shelled corn into heat

Producing 100,000 British Thermal Units (BTUs) per hour, the shelled corn furnaces provide a clean, inexpensive alternative to traditional fuels such as oil and coal, according to Pete Spangler of LMF Manufacturing in Lock Haven

Feed Loss From Large Round Bales Can Be Significant

By Scott M. Barao
Maryland Extension
Livestock Specialist

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — When feeding large round bales, significant forage waste can occur if certain details are ignored. Hay losses during feeding can be expected with any feeding system with the amount of losses varying with the particular system used.

Factors that contribute to waste include forage subjected to trampling, leaf shatter, chemical and physical deterioration as well as urine and fecal contamination. The extent of these losses depends upon the feeding method, interval between feedings, amounts fed at one time, weather conditions and number of animals being fed.

When feeding large round bales, consider the following factors:

1. Feed hay in smaller amounts or in a feeder to minimize waste. When fed smaller quantities at feeding time, cattle have less opportunity to trample forage. If a multiple day feed supply is provided, consider the use of a rack or hay ring to minimize waste.

2. Feed your forage in well-drained areas. Rotate your feeding areas among well-drained sites on a regular basis. This practice will avoid pasture scarring and also reduce the amount of wasted/residual forage.

Match A Spreader To Your Needs

Without Spreading Yourself Too Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options, it's easy to see how the New Idea® 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation Their aggressive, main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders

Get Ready For Your Spring Hay Needs

High-quality CLAAS® equipment satisfies your need for nutrient-rich silage

CLAAS offers a full line of equipment for nutrient-rich silage. Produce perfectly formed, dense bales with today's most reliable, technologically advanced heavy-duty fixed chamber and variable chamber round balers Many models are available with the optional ROTO CUT® cutting system that pre-processes silage and adds greater density to each bale and choice of ROLLATEX® net wrap or twine. Disc mower conditioners, with heavy-duty cutter bars and your choice of roller or tine conditioner, follow ground contours for clean, even cutting. Reliable, heavy-duty tedders with 6 tine arms per rotor accelerate dry down Dependable, heavy-duty rotary rakes, single and twin, with tandem axles produce uniform, fluffy windrows.

Top Producers Choose Knight!
Congratulations to the La-Foster Farm

Terry and Gerald Foster are very proud of their record-breaking cow, Lucy, and rightly so. She produced 75,260 pounds of milk in her last lactation. They are also pleased with their Knight Reel Auggie® mixers, which, combined with the Foster's excellent management practices, have propelled the La-Foster herd average to the #1 milk production status in North Carolina. There is no comparison to the complete, palatable blend from a Knight Reel Auggie, with its patented reel and auger blending combination. Why else would the La-Foster Farm choose only Knight to feed their record-setting herd?

CV FFA Brings Home Speech Title

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On Jan. 7 at the Farm Show, Mary Strasbaugh and Teresa Bisso arrived early to scope out the competition for the first-ever Farm Equipment Speech Competition.

Challenging other chapters from across the state, Mary and Teresa prepared a nine-minute presentation detailing 13 pieces of equipment. While being judged on signage, presentation, content, time, and appearance, Mary stepped onto a stage to deliver the rehearsed dialogue. The winning team, Cumberland Valley FFA, was announced that same day at Mid-Winter Convention.

Mr. Grumbine, Farm Show director, presented the plaque. A round of applause goes out to the team of Teresa Bisso, Amy Kaucher, Mary Strasbaugh, and Gina Lehman for returning on Jan. 9 to continue giving speeches to the public in the main exhibition hall.

Mission Statement Of The Pennsylvania FFA Association

The mission of the Pennsylvania FFA Association is:

• To serve the members of the Pennsylvania FFA, motivating them to develop personally by taking advantage of the opportunities that the organization offers

• To educate members and the public about the role of the FFA and the importance of agriculture in the future of the world

• To present the FFA and agriculture in a positive and proactive manner

...so that we can positively affect the lives of members and encourage them to touch the lives of others.

Pennsylvania's Conventions

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania FFA Association's Summer Convention is the highlight of every year.

It is at this convention that the State CDEs and annual business meetings are conducted. The sessions are fun-filled and packed with talent, awards and speakers.

This year it will be held at Penn State University on June 11, 12 and 13.

Be sure that you are in attendance so that you can meet a national officer, and of course, your new state officer team.

Swine Feed Additive A Major Focus At Ohio Pork Producer Programs

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A swine feed additive that has been shown to increase growth rate, enhance feed efficiency and improve carcass characteristics will be a major topic of discussion at upcoming Ohio State University Extension pork producer programs.

Ohio State specialists will provide research information, explain advantages and disadvantages and address concerns Ohio pork producers and exhibitors may have about Paylean, a product that was approved for use by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) nearly two years ago and is slowly gaining acceptance in the industry. The 2002 Pork Producer Programs: Applying Knowledge for Profit will be conducted January-March throughout Ohio.

"We want to address the use of Paylean in both the commercial and the project pig industries — the opportunities, the benefits and the potential disadvantages of using Paylean in the commercial industry, as well as informing young people how to properly use Paylean in showing pigs," said Steve Moeller, an Ohio State Extension swine specialist.

Added Don Levis, Ohio Pork Industry Center (OPIC) coordinator, "I think producers are sometimes reluctant to accept a new product and may not fully understand how it works. So the main objective here is to explain how to appropriately use Paylean."

Moeller and other Ohio State animal scientists have been studying the effects of Paylean on muscle and meat quality of various pig breeds. Their conclusions support other research in the pig industry — that feeding pigs Paylean during the finishing period (last 90 pounds of growth) improves feed efficiency, increases growth rate and improves carcass back fat, providing a leaner product for consumers.

"One of the concerns the industry has had over the years is that when we've made pigs leaner genetically, it tends to reduce intramuscular fat, particularly in the loin, that leads to a product that is less juicy and has a potentially poorer flavor," said Moeller. "Studies have shown that using Paylean doesn't have that negative impact on quality."

In addition to Paylean, the pork producer programs will also address issues on manure management, reproductive performance, herd health, meat quality and disease impact.

"The meetings have a bottom-up instead of a top-down approach," said Levis. "We went out and asked pork producers what they wanted to know, thus regional programs were developed from input of the producer."

Approximately 1.5 million head of hogs and pigs were raised in Ohio in 2000, bringing in an estimated production value of $333 million.

For more information about program agendas, call the Ohio Pork Industry Center at (800) 398-7675.

Today In The FFA

FFA makes it Real

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The National FFA Organization is a driving force in developing leadership for today's youth. Active participation in public speaking, career development events, chapter meetings, award and recognition programs, committees and community projects provide FFA members with opportunities to develop personal leadership skills. The organization motivates young people to make positive contributions to their homes, schools, communities and country.

The FFA is structured on three levels — local, state and national. The National FFA Organization is led by a board of directors and six student national officers. Together, they act on recommendations from the national convention delegates and set operational policy for the FFA. The program division, FFA New Horizons magazine, and the National FFA Supply Service carry through the policies, and provide programs and services for the organization. The national officers represent the members and actively guide the course of the organization. A president, secretary and four regional vice presidents are elected each year at the national convention.

State Associations function within the constitution of the national organization, but also may create individual leadership, award and contest programs. Chapters are chartered through state associations.

As on the national level, state officers lead the membership of the associations, and are elected by state convention delegates. The number and types of officers at the state level varies.

The heart of the organization is at the local level. FFA Chapters may be chartered in any public school with an agricultural education program. Leadership is provided by student officers elected each year and advisers who guide the chapters.

Officers include a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, reporter and sentinel. Additional officers may be elected to serve other chapter needs, such as a chaplain, parliamentarian and historian. More members can get involved in leadership positions with a mini-chapter system in which each agriculture class elects its own officers.

A Program of Activities organizes each chapter's year, serving as a road map for planning activities and accomplishing goals. Each member is assigned specific responsibilities within the program of activities to ensure total involvement of chapter members. A wide range of activities is planned to meet the needs of the members and the community.

Chapter meetings are held regularly. By participating, members learn communication and parliamentary skills. Developing fellowship with recreation and refreshments after the meetings is also important.

Supervised agricultural experience programs (SAE) are a primary "learning by doing" tool in agricultural education. All students are required to conduct an SAE which reflects their agricultural interests and career goals. Through these individual programs, members receive hands-on training in goal setting, planning and record keeping.

The FFA is structured into a degree program which rewards active FFA members for progress in all phases of leadership, skill and occupational development. The Greenhand FFA Degree and the Chapter FFA Degree are awarded at the chapter level. State associations award top members with the State FFA Degree. The highest degree, the American FFA Degree, is conferred on an elite group of members at the national level.

In addition to active membership, individuals can become members in three other categories — honorary, alumni and collegiate. Honorary membership is conferred on those individuals who have rendered outstanding service to FFA and agricultural education. The Honorary Chapter, State and American FFA Degrees are limited at each level by a majority vote at regular meetings or conventions. Alumni membership is open to former active members, collegiate and honorary members and others supportive of the FFA. Collegiate members belong to FFA chapters at two- or four-year postsecondary schools and are enrolled in agricultural courses.

Annual dues are $3.50 for active members, which includes a year's subscription to FFA New Horizons magazine. State Associations and local chapters may also collect dues. Supplies and FFA jackets are available from the National FFA Supply Service.

FFA is a vital component of the agricultural education program. Millions of Americans have benefited from the organization, and today thousands of young people are learning to lead the challenges in agriculture for a promising future.

History O

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Developing leadership, cooperation and citizenship for tomorrow's agriculturalists— this is the main goal of the National FFA Organization. For more than 70 years, the FFA has complemented agricultural instruction by making classroom lessons come to life through realistic application. From its beginnings in 1928 with 33 delegates at the first national convention, it has grown to encompass over 400,000 members in all 50 states, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands and the District of Columbia.

The original idea for the organization was fostered after courses in vocational agriculture were established by the National Vocational Education Act in 1917. In the early 1920s, Virginia formed a Future Farmers club for boys in agriculture classes. This innovation caught fire across the country and the National Organization was born in 1928 in Kansas City, Mo. National dues to the Future Farmers of America were set at 10

National FFA Organization Holds Nationwide Celebration Feb. 16-23

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — There are not many organizations in which a teen-ager can both learn to design a golf course and perform genetic research; that is, unless the young person is one of 457,000 members of the National FFA Organization.

Found in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, FFA programs prepare youth for more than 300 careers in agriculture. Real-world opportunities for members range from a future in marketing, to law, to science, to international business and more. From Feb. 16-23, FFA chapters nationwide will organize events and activities to build awareness of the promising and diverse opportunities available through agricultural education. Activities will focus on this year's theme "FFA makes it real."

Career success is only one of the benefits students gain from FFA membership. FFA involvement also develops their potential for personal growth and premier leadership. "Our students are prepared to excel in all aspects of their lives," explains National FFA Adviser Dr. Larry D. Case. "FFA uses real-life applications to reinforce classroom learning."

FFA is not extracurricular. The program completes a three-part model of education. Classroom instruction is applied to hands-on supervised agricultural experience programs (SAEs), which are further strengthened through curriculum-enhancing activities and programs. Students learn by doing, practicing the real skills they will need for future success. It's a formula that has worked since 1928.

Nearly half a million young people nationwide already appreciate the genuine experiences created through FFA. On Feb. 16-23, these living success stories hope to help others realize their dreams by joining FFA. For more information about National FFA Week 2002 and to obtain additional ad slicks as well as other materials, visit the FFA media Website at http://www.ffa.org/ffamedia/index.htm or contact your local FFA adviser.

FFA is a national youth organization of 457,278 student members preparing for leadership and careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture with 7,312 local chapters in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Visit www.ffa.org for more information.

Membership grew, and the following year's convention was distinguished by the selection of the national colors and the naming of the first Star Farmer of America. By 1934, the only state which had not chartered an association was Rhode Island. As the years went by, the organization began providing services to support its expanding membership. In 1939, a National FFA Camp was founded on the grounds that went on to hold the National FFA Center for over 50 years. In 1998 the center was moved to Indianapolis, Indiana.

The National FFA Foundation was created in 1944 to provide funds from business and industry to support new programs. Public Law 740, passed by congress in 1951, granted the FFA a federal charter. 1952 marked the establishment of The National Future Farmer Magazine.

A merger of the New Farmers of America, the organization for black agricultural students, with the FFA took place in 1965. More new members were admitted in 1969 when the delegates voted to allow girls to become members.

The next two decades would bring a host of new programs and changes, designed to keep pace with the evolving membership and rapidly changing needs of the agricultural industry. The National FFA Alumni Association was formed in 1971, bringing another arm of support to the organization. In 1988, the delegates voted to change the official name from the Future Farmers of America to the National FFA Organization. Another name change occurred in 1989, that of the magazine to FFA New Horizons.

Pennfield Conducts "Fact-Finding" Meetings For Dairy Producers

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — One of a series of meetings for dairy producers was conducted at the Lebanon Valley Expo center here recently.

Sponsored by Pennfield Feeds, the seminars offered producers the opportunity to stay up to date with current dairy cattle feeds and feeding practices.

Dr. Limin King, professor of ruminant nutrition and microbiology at the University of Delaware gave presentations on best management practices for making and feeding high quality silages. Dr. Tim Snyder, manager of Pennfield's dairy nutrition department spoke on feeding cows for milk component yields.

Meeting locations included Martinsburg, Mansfield, and Lebanon.

Farm Bureau Winners Receive Tractor

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau members Brian and Erika Campbell received the keys to a Kubota tractor recently. Kubota tractor corporation representative Tom Burton presented the Berwick, couple with one year's use of the Kubota tractor of their choice.

They chose a 120-horsepower M120, Kubota's largest tractor, with a cab, four-wheel drive, bevel gear front axle with bi-speed turn feature, 16-speed powershift transmission, and a loader attachment.

The Campbells were presented with their new piece of machinery at Tractor Parts in Bloomsburg. Tractor Part's will provide all of the service and maintenance for the time that the Campbells have the tractor.

The Campbells received the tractor for winning the 2001 Young Farmer and Rancher Achievement Award at the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's annual meeting in November. The annual award honors a young farmer or farm couple under age 35 who demonstrate excellent business and leadership abilities.

The Campbells, who have three young children, farm 650 acres of vegetables and grains for retail and wholesale marketing. Starting as a teen-ager with a "Farmer Moofy" retail farm market, Brian Campbell began farming full-time after college in 1990 with 250 acres. Crops include pumpkins, field corn, processing snap beans, Indian corn, and various other vegetables.

To handle increased wholesale pumpkin sales, Campbell designed a loading facility at the farm to accommodate up to six tractor-trailers at once. High tunnel greenhouses were erected at the farm for early tomato production. "We get customers at the produce stand eating a good quality tomato right off the bat," Campbell said, "so they keep coming back year long."

Campbell modified existing silos at the farm for additional grain storage as he expanded his crop acreage. A new grain elevator was erected and the silos were converted for dry corn storage.

In addition to his retail farm market operation, Campbell also supplies pumpkins for Wal-Mart department stores. He shipped 13 tractor-trailer loads last season and hoped to double that amount this year. Campbell pursues direct marketing opportunities over the winter months. "I feel if I'm going to have any future in farming, a lot of it will have to deal with marketing and making sure I can get a decent price for my products," he said.

Campbell is chairperson of the Columbia County Farm Bureau Young Farmer and Rancher Committee. He is also associate director of the Columbia County Conservation District and serves as president of the Columbia County Crop Management Association and the state Crop Management Association.

Sterling Financial Corporation Posts Record Earnings

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Sterling Financial Corporation has announced record earnings for the quarter and year ended Dec. 31, 2001.

Sterling's net income was $5,285,000 for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 2001 — a $781,000, or 17.3 percent increase from 2000. Basic and diluted earnings per share totaled $.42 for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 2001, versus $.36 for the same period in 2000, an increase of 16.7 percent.

For the year ended Dec. 31, 2001, net income totaled $20,334,000, an increase of $3,767,000, or 22.7 percent, on 2000 net income of $16,567,000. Basic and diluted earnings per share totaled $1.62 for the year ended Dec. 31, 2001, versus $1.32 in 2000, an increase of 22.7 percent.

Total assets increased to $1,866,039,000 at Dec. 31, 2001, an increase of 8.1 percent from $1,726,138,000 at Dec. 31, 2000. The growth in assets was primarily attributed to an 8.1 percent growth in deposits from Dec. 31, 2000 to Dec. 31, 2001. Total loans, net of allowance for loan losses, increased to $1,087,102,000 from $1,021,499,000 or 6.4 percent during the same period.

Sterling Financial Corporation operates 51 banking locations in south central Pennsylvania and northern Maryland, through its subsidiary banks — Bank of Lancaster County, N.A., Bank of Hanover and Trust Company, First National Bank of North East, and Bank of Lebanon County. Non-banking affiliates include insurance, leasing, and investment management services.

In November 2001, Sterling announced it had reached an agreement to purchase Equipment Finance, Inc.; a Lancaster-based commercial finance company that specializes in financing forestry and land clearing equipment. The transaction is expected to be completed in the first quarter of 2002, pending regulatory approval.

Deere Approves Biodiesel Fuel For Products

LENEXA, Kan. — John Deere has approved the use of soy-based Biodiesel in all of its diesel-powered products. This announcement is just the latest step in John Deere's ongoing 35-year commitment to the development of bio-based alternative fuels that benefit both the environment and the agricultural community.

"We're excited to be able to support the use of Biodiesel in our products," notes Ted Breidenbach, manager of worldwide engine engineering for John Deere Power Systems. "Biodiesel is a valuable tool for helping reduce engine emissions. It also stands as one of the linchpins in the movement to develop alternative uses for commodity products that can ultimately deliver more value to our producer customers.

"The quality of Biodiesel as a fuel source has improved tremendously in recent years," Breidenbach adds. "We're confident that when it's used per factory specifications it will generate the performance producers have come to expect from their John Deere equipment."

After thorough testing and analysis John Deere engineers have developed the following guidelines to help ensure optimum use of Biodiesel:

- Customers should consult with their local fuel suppliers to be sure the Biodiesel fuel meets the ASTM PS 121-99 or DIN 51606 fuel specifications.
- Biodiesel, by definition is biodegradable, so the higher the concentration of Biodiesel in a fuel blend, the more susceptible the fuel is to degradation and water absorption. While rapeseed methyl ester (RME) concentrations up to 100 percent have been run successfully, concentrations of up to five percent Biodiesel have shown improvement in fuel lubricity while minimizing the potential problems associated with fuel degradation.
- Operators should keep storage and vehicle tanks as full as possible to prevent moisture. Storage tanks should be protected from extreme temperatures and extended storage of Biodiesel fuel should be limited. Routine monitoring of the fuel's water content is also recommended.

Kansas City To Host Agricultural Equipment Technology Conference

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. — Kansas City, Mo., will be the site of this year's Agricultural Equipment Technology Conference, AETC 2002. The conference will take place Feb. 20-22 at the Crown Westin Center.

The annual conference, which precedes the Western Farm Show, brings together engineers, managers, researchers and other professionals in the agricultural equipment industry to exchange information, discuss opportunities, and address challenges for production agriculture.

Speakers at AETC 2002 will address issues on precision agriculture, autonomous vehicles, sensors and electronics in agricultural machinery. Providing this year's Distinguished Lecture, on Friday, Feb. 22, will be Robert J. Plaskitt and Christopher J. Musiol, of nCode International, who will discuss the analysis and testing considerations required to produce a durable structure frame.

Providing a welcome address on Thursday, Feb. 21, will be R. Wayne Skaggs, current president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and William Neal Reynolds Professor and Distinguished University Professor at North Carolina State University's Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering.

AETC is sponsored by the Power and Machinery Division of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE). Complimentary press registration is available. Further information about AETC 2002 can be found at http:/www.asae.org/meetings/aetc02/index.html or by contacting ASAE Conferences Manager Brenda West, (616) 428-6327.

Rising Temperatures Could Change Face Of Agriculture

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Within one hundred years, the major agricultural staple in Ohio could be peanuts or strawberries, rather than corn or wheat.

Various global warming models have predicted an increase in average temperature over the next century, ranging from 2.5 degrees Fahrenheit to as high as 10 degrees Fahrenheit — enough to cause a significant climate change throughout the Great Lakes region that would affect agricultural practices.

But whether Ohio might face wetter conditions similar to those experienced in North Carolina or a drier climate like that of northern Texas remains to be seen. However, one thing is certain, stressed Ohio State University glaciologist Lonnie Thompson. Our planet is definitely getting warmer.

"Glaciers are our best tool for studying natural climate variations. They respond to what's happening to the environment and there is compelling evidence to suggest that they are rapidly disappearing," said Thompson, who works at the Byrd Polar Research Center. "When those records melt away, we will lose one of our best archives for studying not only global warming but in understanding the causes of past global climate change."

Thompson will discuss the recession of glaciers and the impact global warming will have on agriculture at the Conservation Tillage and Technology Conference, Feb. 25-26 in Ada, Ohio. Thompson is a world-renowned scientist who has focused on recreating ancient Earth's climate and tracking current climatological shifts using glaciers located in the tropics. He was recently profiled in Time magazine as one of America's top 20 scientists.

Thompson and his associates have focused their work on such glaciers as those found on Mount Kilimanjaro in Africa and the Quelccaya ice cap in the Andes in South America. They have found that both areas have lost a tremendous amount of ice over the past 40-90 years.

"From five maps that have been made since 1912 to the last one completed based on aerial photos taken in 2000, we have been able to document that Kilimanjaro has lost over 80 percent of its total area of ice. If the rate of loss continues, the ice will disappear in about 13 years," said Thompson.

The Quelccaya ice cap has also been receding at a rapid pace. From 1963-1978, the ice cap was receding 4.7 meters (15 feet) per year. By 1998 the recession had increased 10-fold and at last calculation in 2000, the ice cap was vanishing at a rate of 155 meters (508 feet) per year.

Thompson said the rapid rate of glacial recession is in response to an increase in global temperature, mainly caused from the burning of fossil fuels that release carbon dioxide ($CO_2$) into the atmosphere and trap the sun's heat, creating a phenomenon known as the greenhouse effect. Global temperatures have increased eight-tenths of a degree over the last 100 years.

"That increase may not seem significant," said Thompson, "but when you take into account the amount of $CO_2$ that has been released over the last century, the impact of the climate change on Earth is substantial."

Since the beginning of the Industrial Revolution in the 1800s, the amount of $CO_2$ released into the atmosphere has increased 30 percent from approximately 290 parts per million by volume to 370 parts per million by volume. Within the next 60 years, the $CO_2$ concentration is expected to nearly double.

By comparison, the natural contribution of $CO_2$ from volcanoes ranges from 300 million to 1.1 billion tons per year. Humans are now releasing over 8 billion tons of $CO_2$ into Earth's atmosphere annually. Moreover, said Thompson, the $CO_2$ presently being released will impact the Earth's climate over the next 100 years.

"Climate change whether natural or human driven will certainly have an impact on agriculture. Our ability to produce crops depends on temperature and precipitation," said Thompson. "An apple grower might welcome a two-degree increase in temperature, but it's the subtle relationships between climate and life that we need to be aware of."

Over 50 speakers from land-grant universities, the farming sector and agricultural industries and organizations will be speaking at the two-day tillage conference.

The program will cover a wide range of topics including agriculture-related panel discussions, strip till research, weed and pest management, soil fertility, GMO crops, value-added farming, crop consulting, soil and water quality issues, precision agriculture and producer programs.

The event is being sponsored by Ohio State University Extension, Northwest Ohio Soil and Water Conservation Districts, United States Department of Agriculture Natural Resources Conservation Service, USDA Farm Service Agency and the Ohio No-Till Council.

Early registration is $20 per day or $30 to attend both days. Registration after Feb. 11 is $30 a day or $40 for both days. For a copy of the agenda, registration information, or directions to Ohio Northern University, contact the Hancock County Ohio State Extension office at (419) 422-3851 or the Allen County Soil and Water Conservation District at (419) 223-0040.

ASA Urges USDA To Announce 2002 Loan Rates

SAINT LOUIS, Mo. — The American Soybean Association (ASA) is urging Agriculture Secretary Ann Veneman to act immediately on the Department's commitment to announce loan rates for 2002 crops this month.

Farmers and their lenders need to know what the safety net for 2002 crops of soybeans and other commodities will be during the final year of the 1996 Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform (FAIR) Act, should it remain in effect. Further delay will increase uncertainty and the potential for misunderstanding as producers make planting decisions in the coming weeks.

"With no certainty that the next farm bill will be in effect for 2002 crops, farmers and their lenders need to know as soon as possible what next year's farm program will be under the final year of the FAIR Act," said ASA President Bart Ruth, a soybean and corn producer from Rising City, Neb. "It now seems virtually certain that Congress will not complete the new farm bill this year."

ASA first requested action on 2002 crop loan rates on Oct. 17. ASA leaders again raised this issue in a meeting at the USDA on Oct. 30. At that time, Under Secretary J.B. Penn advised ASA that the Department would announce its decision on loan rate levels in early December. That has not happened.

"It is possible that farm bill legislation acceptable to the Administration can be enacted shortly after Congress returns in 2002, in time to be effective for next year's crops," Ruth said. "However, it is also possible that legislation will not be completed until later in the year, and that the FAIR Act will remain in place for 2002 crops."

ASA is strongly urging Secretary Veneman to announce 2002 crop loan rates, contingent on the possibility that new farm legislation may not replace the FAIR Act. ASA is also urging the Secretary to preserve continuity in Department policy by maintaining the 2002 soybean loan rate at the current 2001 level of $5.26 per bushel.

"It is now two months since we raised this issue, and the promised announcement by the Department is overdue," Ruth said. "With soybean prices at historic low levels, and with the massively devalued Brazilian Real continuing to distort soybean production and trade, this is not the time to undercut the only income protection provided to U.S. soybean producers."

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED
is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

Waterbeds for Cows

ALANTA®
A member of the UniPoly group of companies Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

Flame KISSED
ROASTING ADDS VALUE TO FARM GRAINS

~ Molds are destroyed and toxins are greatly reduced to below tolerance levels.

Attention: Swine and Poultry Producers

Announcing

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:

- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds
- Can be used for dust control purposes
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:

- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat
- Vegetable based product
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs

Other Soy Products Available:

- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program

- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products

ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.

from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower-to-grower direct seed sales
- SDSU tested
- Offered to growers for $1 55/per lb in 60 lb bags plus freight
- Varieties S D Common, Vernal and others
- These Alfalfa varieties are proven to compete with the expensive varieties in all conditions and always carry our money back guarantee

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting wonderful alfalfa from South Dakota seed

153 ACRE DAUPHIN COUNTY FARM

This farm is ideally located at the base of a mountain range in Northern Dauphin County, (Lykens Valley), near Millersburg. The buildings are set several hundred yards off the main road, creating that perfect Currier & Ives setting everyone dreams about with the mountain as a back drop. The buildings feature a very well maintained brick center hall farm house with 4 large bedrooms and a large country kitchen The out buildings consist of a 38x40 Bank Barn, 25x42 heated shop and 60x120 Morton pole building used for equipment storage. The majority of 100 tillable acres is gently rolling productive farm land with approximately 12 acres of pasture and 41 acres of woodland This farm would be ideal for vegetable production with it's fertile crop land and abundant water supply for irrigation or it would make a perfect country estate, with it's beautiful setting and buildings.

Snyder Co. Dairy is in need of a new owner for spring. This one has 50 comfort stalls, barn cleaner to a lagoon, young stock facilities. Large trench silo w/concrete bottom and sides, plenty of implement storage and a 5 bedroom house with 2 baths. This 72 acre place will be ready for you around Feb. 1, 2002 and the best part is the price with owner financing.

Priced at $350K.

Snyder Co. - The 98 Acre farm is priced under $250K with owner financing. This grain or beef farm is also ideal for produce with a small pond and stream. There are 60 acres m/l tillable and the balance is woodland. There is a pond in the woodland tract as well. The modernized LOG home is liveable and had tenants until recently. Move in soon

Dauphin Co.: 82 Acre Beef and Poultry farm is a good investment for any serious buyer. The Organic egg contract is an excellent money make and a first rate building with only the 2nd flock in the building which is just over 1 year old. What's best is the building is fully automatic and temperature controlled even if you aren't there. The land is very fertile with all the manure there is little or no fertilizer required for excellent crops A private setting with silo's for the cattle operation and a very comfortable farm family residence. Serious buyers call for a private showing.

The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The mission of the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation is to raise funds to support the activities of Pennsylvania FFA members. In 1998 the Foundation will provide over $86,000 to support leadership development, state officer expenses, regional and national career development events teams and much more.

Without the help of our generous sponsors, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and citrus rebate program, this support would not possible. In addition to relying on sponsors for financial support, the Foundation holds several fund-raising activities throughout the year.

The most successful of these events is the Hoss's® Fore FFA golf tournament and dinner auction. This year's event raised over $25,000. Each year the Foundation also raises funds with a food booth at Penn State's Ag Progress Days. Thanks to the assistance of Hatfield Quality Meats, the state officer team, chapter members, and Foundation Board of Trustees, this event raised nearly $6,000.

Finally, the Foundation's Limited Edition tractor sales have built an endowment fund of nearly $70,000. This endowment fund will continue to grow with the sale of the remaining Limited Edition trucks and tractors.

As always, contributions to the Foundation are not only tax deductible, but one of the best investments that can be made for the future of Pennsylvania agriculture. Questions regarding the Foundation can be directed to Foundation Secretary Mrs. Kerry Hoffman Richards at (814) 865-2134.

The FFA Creed

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — I believe in the future of agriculture, with a faith born not of words but of deeds — achievements won by the present and past generations of agriculturists; in the promise of better days through better ways, even as the better things we now enjoy have come to us from the struggles of former years.

I believe that to live and work on a good farm, or to be engaged in other agricultural pursuits, is pleasant as well as challenging; for I know the joys and discomforts of agricultural life and hold an inborn fondness for those associations which, even in hours of discouragement, I cannot deny.

I believe in leadership from ourselves and respect from others. I believe in my own ability to work efficiently and think clearly, with such knowledge and skill as I can secure, and in the ability of progressive agriculturists to serve our own and the public interest in producing and marketing the product of our toil.

I believe in less dependence on begging and more power in bargaining; in the life abundant and enough honest wealth to help make it so — for others as well as myself; in less need for charity and more of it when needed; in being happy myself and playing square with those whose happiness depends upon me.

I believe that American agriculture can and will hold true to the best traditions of our national life and that I can exert an influence in my home and community which will stand solid for my part in that inspiring task.

The creed was written by E. M. Tiffany, and adopted at the third National Convention of the FFA. It was revised at the 38th Convention and the 63rd Convention.
